ESTIMATES 1,355 JAPANESE PLANES LOST

MANY SHOT DOWN IN AIR COMBAT

Chinese Now Admit Hukow Captured

Hankow, July 8.

No fewer than 570 Japanese war planes have been destroyed by the Chinese air force and anti-aircraft batteries during one year of hostilities, declared Colonel Mao Pang-chu, Chief of Aerial Operations in the Chinese Air Force to-day.

Colonel Mao added: "A total of 243 Japanese aircraft have actually been shot down in combat in the air and 138 have been destroyed on the ground by Chinese bombing operations. Chinese anti-aircraft batteries have shot down 163. The remaining 26 shot down have not been located.

"The aircraft destroyed include 64 heavy bombers, 90 light bombers, 54 pursuit planes, 13 scouting planes, 19 seaplanes and 320 unidentified.

"The losses due to accident probably totaled 785 machines, thus bringing the number of Japanese aircraft lost during the year to the vast total of 1,355. The number of officers in the Japanese air force to lose their lives during the first year of war probably totals 1,100."—Reuter Special.

Admit Hukow's Capture

Hankow, July 8.
The Central Government authorities now admit the loss of Hukow, which was occupied by the Japanese on Tuesday morning.—United Press.

Details of Attack

Hankow, July 8.
When the Japanese troops landed at Hukow on Tuesday, Chinese reports state, another column of troops simultaneously advanced on the South bank of the Yangtze River, reaching a point about eight miles east of Hukow.
The Japanese succeeded in penetrating the Chinese positions, it is admitted.

After the arrival of reinforcements on Wednesday morning, the Chinese counter-attacked, and allegedly occupied Lungtoushan, east of Hukow, and also Mayinchiao, to the south-east of the city.—Reuter.

Chinese Counter-Attack

Nanchang, July 8.
Chinese troops are counter-attacking the Japanese in the Hukow area with favourable results. It is now ascertained that the Japanese broke through the Chinese artillery positions there in the afternoon of July 5. Lungtoushan, a hill commanding a strategic position about ten kilometres east of Hukow, was recaptured by the Chinese yesterday morning. About 2,000 Japanese were killed in this engagement.

Following the recapture of this height, the retreat of the Japanese in the Hukow area has been cut.
Several villages in the vicinity, including Changsun, Tantsun and Tolsun, were also recaptured. Japanese troops rushed from Matang to reinforce their comrades in the Hukow area but were beaten back.—Central News.

DEATH ROLL ADMITTED TO BE 251

Kobe, July 8.
The death roll in Kobe is now officially admitted to be 251.
Over thirteen hundred people are injured, many of them seriously.—United Press.

Italians Fire On French Territory

Rome, July 7.

The French Charge d'Affaires in Rome has protested to the Foreign Office regarding an alleged incident involving two French tourists.

The Frenchmen accidentally crossed the frontier into Italian territory, but as soon as they realised their mistake they returned to French soil.

Nevertheless, the Italian frontier guards fired on while they were in French territory. One of the men was seriously wounded.—Reuter.

BUILDING PLANES FOR R.A.F.

American Company Starts On Order

Los Angeles, July 7.
The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Burbank, California, has announced that production is starting next week of the 200 aircraft suitable for general reconnaissance, purchased by the British Government for the Royal Air Force.

This order comprises half of the total order for 400 aircraft placed by the British Government with American manufacturers.

The balance of the order, for 200 aircraft suitable for advanced training, was placed with the North American Aviation Inc., Inglewood, California.

The purchases were recommended by the British air mission which recently went to the U.S.A., and which also pursued discussions with Canadian firms on the possibility of increased capacity there for making planes on a long-range plan.

The value of the order placed with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation is $5,470,000.
The first machines are expected to be ready for shipment within three months, and the entire order for 200

AMERICAN MARINES DRIVE OUT JAPANESE

Gendarmes Evicted From Shanghai Patrol Area

Shanghai, July 8.

U.S. Marines evicted two lorries filled with Japanese gendarmes, including plainclothes men, when they attempted to search a Chinese in the American sector this morning.

The lorries were escorted across the Yu Ya Ching Road boundary, where the Japanese parked for half-an-hour, apparently undecided as to what to do. Afterwards the lorries returned to Hongkong.

Several bridges across Soochow Creek have been re-opened, but the American defence sector is still closed.—United Press.

Skirmishes Near Peiping

Railway Cut North Of Lukouchiao

Peiping, July 7.

The anniversary of the Lukouchiao incident passed quietly in Peiping, the only local disturbances being the cutting of the Peiping-Mentoukou Railway near Sanchiatien, eight miles north of Lukouchiao, by Chinese guerrillas.

There were a few isolated skirmishes between guerrillas and Japanese in the vicinity of Peiping. Japanese gendarmes and Chinese police cleared the streets of Peiping at 7.30 a.m. when General Terauchi, his staff, Japanese Embassy officials and a delegation of Provisional Government officials drove to the forbidden city of Taimiao, where a special ceremony in memory of Japan's war dead was held.

Japanese shops in Peiping were all closed, the entire Japanese population participating in various meetings throughout the city.

Japanese reservists marched to Lukouchiao, where a small monument marking the actual spot of the "incident" was unveiled.—United Press.

machines will be completed before the end of 1939.
The Lockheed two-engine bombers ordered for the Royal Air Force have a speed of 225-250 m.p.h. Lockheed Aircraft Corporation is principally devoted to the manufacture of high-speed all-metal commercial aircraft for mail and passenger service. Some of the machines—the Lockheed Electras—have down thousands of miles on British Empire airway systems.—Reuter.

CANADA'S UNEMPLOYED are creating a difficult problem. Recently some hundreds of them seized the General Post Office (where they slept) and other public buildings in Vancouver, B.C. They demanded relief, food and shelter. When they did not get guarantees of these they rioted and fought with police. Authorities assert that many of these "unemployed" are paid agitators, some of them Americans. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating the whole situation, while the British Columbian Prime Minister, Mr. T. D. Pattullo, says: "If you want to work, go on the land." But the men want jobs in the cities.

BRITAIN UNCERTAIN OF ATTITUDE IN BOMBING QUARREL

London, July 7.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain stated in the House of Commons that he was as yet unable to make a full statement regarding the Insurgent reply to the British Note on the bombing of British ships.

The British Government had found it necessary to ask the Burgos authorities to explain the exact meaning they attach to their disclaimer of their intentions of deliberately attacking British ships, said Mr. Chamberlain.

The British Government has frequently expressed the view that the deliberate bombing and sinking of merchantmen is never admitted by International Law, still less the machine-gunning of their bridges and decks (Cheers).

The Government would give most sympathetic consideration to the practical proposals which the Burgos authorities intimated they would make for the purpose of humanising warfare, the Prime Minister went on. Referring to the Burgos proposal for the establishment of a "safe" port at Almeria, preliminary examination had revealed difficulties, such as deficiencies in such a plan for discharging vessels, lack of communication with the rest of Spain, and other factors.

The British Government was at present considering the views of British shipping interests on the matter.

Replying to Mr. Clement Attlee, the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Chamberlain said that consideration must be borne in mind whether, by the establishment of a special port, he right to bomb other areas would be admitted by the British Government.

Meanwhile, Sir Robert Hodgson, the British Agent in Burgos, is remaining in London for the present.—Reuter.

CONQUEST IMPOSSIBLE

Berlin, July 7.

"The unity of 450,000,000 people in China will succeed in driving out the enemy and restoring the integrity and sovereignty of our land," said the Chinese Ambassador, in an address to 400 Chinese residents of Germany on the occasion of the first anniversary of the Sino-Japanese War.

"Japan will never bring China to her knees. The deeper the Japanese invade our land the greater will be the difficulties they will encounter."—Reuter.

POLICE EXHAUSTED AFTER HOURS OF CONTINUOUS DUTY

Martial Law Possible If Situation Grows Worse

London, July 7.

While latest reports of terrorist outbreaks in Palestine are viewed with anxiety in London, there is no disposition to believe that the situation is getting out of hand.

In view of the nature of the country and the type of disturbances, the problem of keeping order would be more a matter for mobile police than the military authorities. Nevertheless, cantonments are now being constructed to house the additional brigade of troops which, as announced last May, will be sent to Palestine in the autumn, making the total military strength in Palestine three brigades.

Should the situation at any time be deemed sufficiently serious, the High Commissioner can delegate military powers with respect to the whole country to the General Officer Commanding the military forces in Palestine.—Reuter Special.

EMERALD FOR HAIFA

Jerusalem, July 7.
H.M.S. Emerald is expected to arrive at Haifa this afternoon in view of the tense situation there.

Official figures dealing with yesterday's terrorist outrages in Haifa give twenty-one Arabs and six Jews killed, 92 Arabs and eleven Jews injured. Further outrages occurred to-day, when a Deputy Police Superintendent had a narrow escape when a bomb was flung into his car outside the Hotel Nazareth. His revolver jammed (Continued on Page 4.)

Czechs' Big Problem Not Yet Settled

Prague, July 7.

Dr. Milan Hodza and the Sudeten-German representatives to-day resumed negotiations, suspended during the Sokol festivities, concerning the drafting of a Nationalities Statute.

Efforts are being made to reach a compromise on eight points submitted by Herr Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten leader, but it is doubtful whether the draft will be ready for submission to the Farlandary Committee at the end of this week, as was hoped.—Reuter.

PEIPING STERNLY RULED

Virtual Martial Law Enforced

Peiping, July 7.

The Provisional Government ordered all flags to be half-masted, but few were flown.

Meanwhile the Chinese populace is virtually under Martial Law, with the police searching passers-by in the main streets continually since yesterday afternoon. All inns were ransacked. One inn was searched on six occasions yesterday.

A large number of Chinese were arrested last night, including one of the editors of the official Hsin Min Pao.

Police were seen frequently conducting groups of arrested Chinese to gaol.

Police circles boast that Peiping's most important Communist was arrested yesterday, but there is no official confirmation of the report.

Duke Of Kent Inspects New China Flagship

London, July 7.

H.M.S. Kent, which was recently re-commissioned as flagship of the China Station, to replace H.M.S. Cumberland, was inspected by the Duke of Kent to-day.

The Duke flew by air to Rochester, motoring from there to Chatham Dockyard, where he was met by Admiral Sir Edward Evans, Commander-in-Chief of the North.

Accompanied by Flag Officers, His Royal Highness and the Commander-in-Chief embarked on the Admiral's Barge and proceeded down the Medway to Sheerness, where they went on board H.M.S. Kent, which arrived there on Tuesday after undergoing a large re-fit.

The visit of the Duke of Kent coincided with an inspection of H.M.S. Kent by the Commander-in-Chief before the cruiser departed for the Far East this week.

The Duke had luncheon aboard the cruiser with the Commanding Officer, Captain L. H. Ashmore.—British Wireless.

OPEN AIR GIRL

WISE sports girls are careful in choosing clothes for summer week-ends. My advice to them is to remember that fabrics are of first importance if they want their dresses to look fresh all through the summer.

Something that will wash repeatedly is what they need, and good "wearing" materials are receiving my serious attention just now.

For bright, sunshiny days colours have taken on a pastel tone this year. They look lovely against the dark foliage of the river banks, effective by the sea, and for spectator sports by the swimming pool.

Ivory, too, is used as the background for gaily coloured designs and Jersey a pois is the attractive name of the Celanese fabric selected for pattern No. 1152.

Brightly coloured minute dice shaped spots in five different contrasting shades have an ivory background in the material used for this little suit.

Orange, blue, brown and green are the shades in the one I have chosen. Both dress and jacket have sleeves. Bodice of frock is buttoned to waist and trimmed with pockets, and the skirt has panel pleat in front only.

Collarless jacket comes to just below the hips, a useful length if you are not very slim, and is also decorated with pockets to match.

Four sizes are available, as this is a good style for the small woman—32.

First, a neat dress and jacket in ivory dotted Jersey a pois. Next, a comfortable divided skirt for tennis and all sports

Savoury Rolls

HERE is a choice of dainty roll sandwiches for tea-time picnics or buffet suppers

Crab and Cucumber

Slice the cucumber, drain it well. Flake the crab. Mix equal quantities of crab and cucumber with a small minced onion, and sufficient salad cream to moisten.

Corned Beef

Corned beef sandwiches are good.

Shred the beef, add a tea-spoonful of Worcester sauce, a little made mustard and a lettuce leaf. Blend well together, then spread between buttered rolls.

Tomato Cream

A few drops of onion juice add a new flavour to tomato sandwiches. Plunge the tomatoes into boiling water for a few moments, skin, then mash to a pulp. Add a tiny drop of onion juice, or a little chopped hard-boiled egg.

Season with a sprinkling of pepper and salt and serve between bridge rolls.

Salad Mixture

Fresh salad, such as lettuce, cucumber, watercress and tomatoes, makes delicious eating.

Arrange the lettuce, a slice of tomato and cucumber, then sprinkle with salad cream and a little grated cheese.

Savoury Shrimps

Here's a favourite: Flavour some ready picked shrimps with a few drops of lemon juice, then spread between milk bread rolls. They are also tasty mixed with hard-boiled egg.

34, 36, and 40in. bust. Size 36in. bust takes 34yds. 36in. Jersey a pois. It is not every girl whose legs are good enough for shorts, and the divided skirt is getting more popular every year. The charm of pattern No. 1153 is that when you are standing still the design looks like an ordinary skirt.

By means of deep pleats you have a dress that gives you the same freedom of movement as shorts.

You will find this style useful, too, for cycling and walking on hot days. Cut with the new yoke top, it is buttoned to below the waist, so is easy to slip on and off. Easy to get into, and out of, it doesn't spoil your hair when making a quick change.

Two sharply pointed pockets prevent the impression of width at the hips. There is a lovely range of new colours, and here they are for your choice.

Beauty pink, the colour of apple blossom, canteloupe, which is a light tangerine, Dutch blue, lido green, new azure, oyster, reseda, tiger gold, and ivory.

They will meet your requirements

Marry Someone "Different"

A WELL-known novelist recently declared how desirable it was for people to marry who shared the same interests.

"You are always sure of sympathy and help," she affirmed, "are never short of topics to talk about, and above all, both work with the same end in view. I think it is a splendid idea."

On the surface the scheme sounds as though it would work well, but in fact, it rarely does.

As a practical case one couple, both keen classical scholars, found to their dismay that after six months marriage they were bored to tears of one another's company. They both read the same type of books, thought the same kind of thoughts, and generally acted in such perfect accord that there was a most depressing lack of stimulation.

And stimulation is what one needs. If married life is to be a success. One partner should be able to open up new paths of thought for the other, to "roughen his mind" with thoughts and theories which he had not previously considered.

After all, it is dull for a man to come home to his wife, full of stories of the wonderful way he did his round of golf that morning, only to find that she knows every bunker as well as he does. The joy in the telling soon flags.

This does not mean that there should not be some harmony. There should. But a great musician will marry a wife whose only interest in life is painting, and they will get along splendidly, whereas a wife who knows too much of his subject is apt to be merely an irritant, critical where she should be admiring. Opposite Interests

Naturally, because you are keen on dancing it does not follow that your only chance of happiness is to marry a man who cannot bear the sight of a ballroom. There would soon be friction over your dance partners! But it does mean that because he is a clever science master you need not worry if your acquaintance with the subject is confined to a dim recollection of once breaking a test tube. He will be only too glad to forget the subject once he gets home. And therein lies the whole point of this "somewhat different" idea. A man does like to forget his daily work when he gets home. He can't, if his wife insists on talking about it in a thoroughly learned sort of way. But he can forget it if her for an all-purpose summer frock. Size 34in. bust takes 34yds. 36in. Celanese Cruising Crepe. Other sizes available are: 32, 36, and 40in. bust.

Now just a word on washing these fabrics. If you want them to retain their freshness, on no account may they be boiled.

Use good quality soap flakes in lukewarm water, and squeeze gently, rinse well to remove the soap, and roll in a towel, pull the garment carefully into shape, then iron.

Your iron should be cool, and press the reverse side of fabrics, and keep the iron moving; avoid pressure over the buttons, seams and trimmings.

The results will be worth the trouble taken.

Ironing Hints

CLOQUE is one of the fashionable materials for day and evening wear just now. It is seen in dresses and two-piece suits, in informal and formal functions, and it is, altogether, a member of the hard-working fabric fraternity.

The preservation of its appearance, therefore, is important, so here is a hint about ironing the fabric which is worth noting. Cloque should always be ironed when nearly dry, and you should not press too hard with the iron upon the material. The material should be stretched both ways when you are ironing it.

Crepe fabrics, which are also very much to the fore in the summer fashion scene, should be ironed in the same way as cloque. The stretching of the material in both directions is most important, as merely sliding the iron over the material is not sufficient for these fabrics.

When you fold some garment on the ironing board be careful that you do not iron the material on the cross. Do not iron along the hem of the garment either. The hem, and the edge of the article where the fold is should be pressed, and the rest of the article should be ironed in the direction of the material. Always iron on the straight of the material.

These hints on ironing were given by Mrs. Markham, a representative from the Lux Washability Bureau of Lever Bros., during a short conversation yesterday in the fabrics department of Patrick Thomson, Ltd., North Bridge, Edinburgh.

Mrs. Markham shows the fabrics which have passed the "washability test" of the Bureau, and gives hints on laundering the various materials to anyone who cares to consult her. She will be available at the shop until Saturday of this week.

Among the interesting materials which can be seen are spun rayons, crepes, and cottons in bright patterns, and a new material in silk featuring a lace effect. This new fabric in pastel shades is suitable for lingerie, and it, like the others, has passed the test.

QUICK CONVALESCENCE AFTER FEVERS

Doctors will tell you that once your temperature falls it's all-important to rebuild your wasted nerve and muscle tissues.

After the fever has gone, when the stomach is too weak to digest ordinary foods, a nourishing and appetising food drink is most essential and beneficial.

In Horlicks doctors have found a liquid food that not only can be easily digested, but also stimulates your faded appetite and gives your exhausted body all the nourishment it needs. Horlicks helps you to put on weight, re-establish your strength and regain your full vitality. Get Horlicks to-day.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

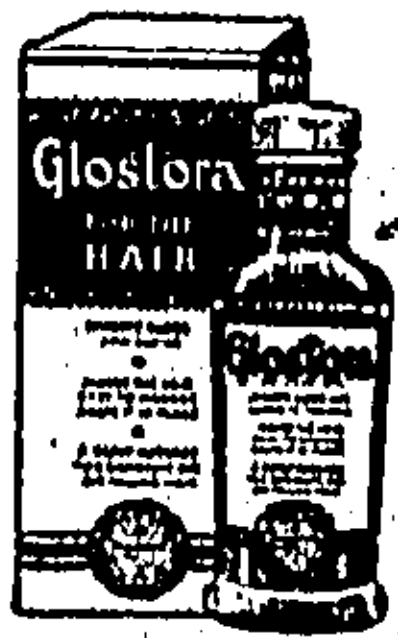

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, 400-408 Asia Life Building.

Refreshing Summer Drinks

IN hot weather we grow lyrical over thirst-quenching drinks, and sit up and take notice at the sound of ice-creaking against glass.

A cooling fruit cocktail is a good beginning to a hot weather lunch. It whips up the palate for the meal, and refreshes you.

For a tomato juice cocktail, strain the juice from sound, ripe tomatoes, press through a fine sieve to clear them of coarse fibre in the pulp, and add seeds. Flavour to taste with salt and pepper and a squeeze of lemon juice.

Another appetiser comes from orange and lemon juice used in small quantities. If the cocktail is unsweetened, add a few grains of pepper.

Grape-fruit juice and mint makes an interesting drink. Squeeze the juice from the grape-fruit and stir in very finely chopped mint, to which a little caster sugar has been added. Pour into cocktail glasses and finish off with a mint leaf floating on each.

Instead of mint, some people like lemon juice and a slice of lemon can take the place of the mint leaf. For Those Who Are Slimming

Pine apple juice cocktail is for the slimming. Squeeze fresh juice squeezed from the fruit is best, but if canned pineapple can be used. Drain the liquid and add sufficient lemon juice to give it a tang. Serve ice cold in cocktail glasses with potato crisps and salted almonds.

Pear and pineapple juice make good companions. And to give a pear and pineapple cocktail a good complexion, add just a touch of preserved raspberry juice, that is if fresh raspberries are not available. No sugar will be needed, and if the cocktail is not sharp enough in flavour add a little lemon juice.

A tasty drink can be made from a mixture of fruit juices. Lemon, pineapple, orange, and raspberry juice are mixed together. A wafer slice of banana and a mint leaf should decorate each glass.

When it comes to "long" drinks, orangeade is certain to be in request. Make this by pouring a pint of boiling water on to the rinds of four oranges. These should be pared very thinly. After covering for half a day, make a syrup with a pint and a half of water and half a pound of sugar, adding this to the rinds, together with the juice of the oranges and the juice of three extra oranges. Stir energetically, then strain and add a little extra lemon juice if you wish.

Almond Water and Mint Sherbert

Almond water is very simple to make, and pleasing to the palate. Place four ounces of sweet almonds and one of bitter almonds in a pan with a quart of cold water. Bring to the boil and simmer very slowly for half an hour. Add three-quarters of a pound of sugar and allow this to dissolve. Strain and bottle. Half a cupful of the water in soda makes a glorious "long" drink.

Mint sherbert is a most refreshing drink and takes very little trouble to make. Dissolve one pound of sugar in a quart of water and add several leaves of chopped mint. Cover the bowl for an hour, then add the juice of three fine lemons. Strain before serving.

Have you tried a coffee milk "shake"? This has the merit of being stimulating as well as refreshing. For each glass allow sufficient coffee essence to make a breakfast cup full.

Mix the coffee with unsweetened condensed milk, allowing two table-spoonfuls to each glass of water. Sugar as you wish, then add the necessary amount of cold water and whisk in a large jug until frothy. The addition of a little ice cream makes this "shake" even more delightful.

SUMMER BEAUTY

"THE most important part of making-up one's face is the application of the foundation cream or lotion," said Miss Winifred Pegler, one of Elizabeth Arden's London representatives, when giving a private demonstration of the new Elizabeth Arden summer make-ups recently.

"The foundation of your powder should always be carefully moulded into the face, for if the foundation is put on in a haphazard manner the rouge and powder cannot look right," she added.

The use of two different shades of powder was recommended. When making-up during the day, it was advisable, said the expert, to use a light shade of powder first, then apply a darker shade on top, to get the best even results. In the evening, the process had to be reversed, and a darker powder put on first, with a lighter shade on top, so that an effect of transparency and extreme closeness of skin could be obtained.

Powder should always be blended into the skin, it was stated. If it was applied carefully, it should stay on, without replenishing, for about three or four hours.

The two new make-ups which were shown on living models were called "sun tan" and "sun fair." The sun tan make-up could be used by those who were already tanned by the sun, or by those who were not, and wanted to acquire a "healthy, open-air look."

The "sun fair" make-up had been introduced for those with very fine skin, and who wanted to perfect their skins from the strong rays of the sun. This make-up also gave a "healthy look" to the face.

Tell me, doctor...

What is a mother to do! Why, the scratch was so small you could hardly see it: blood-poisoning never entered my mind. After all, children can't sit still all day—though I have asked Freddie not to play in that shed. But, I mean, it might happen to any of us—a cut, a little scratch! Tell me what is one to do?

The smallest cut or scratch is enough for the germs of blood-poisoning to enter. To the germs that cause the havoc, a tiny break in the skin is a wide-open door. There is only one way to prevent their invasion; they must be killed—at once. 'Dettol', the Modern Antiseptic, can be applied immediately; there are directions on every bottle. This thorough killer of germs is gentle and tender on human tissues. Non-poisonous and non-staining to the skin, yet death to germs. 'Dettol' promptly used may save you untold pain and danger.

"NEUTRAL" STATES CANNOT ESCAPE ARMS RACE

Geneva. The so-called "neutral" states that have so far managed to remain aloof from the arms race are warned, in the March issue of the International Labour Review, published by the I.L.O., that it will be impossible for them to escape its aftermath. The warning is contained in the concluding article by British economist A. J. S. Baxter, on the economic effects of rearmament.

"The trend towards greater national self-sufficiency," he says, "and the greater riskiness of economic relations characteristic of a rearming world may suggest that, as international trade and capital movements become less important, 'neutral' countries that do not desire, or are not obliged, to enter the armaments race will escape the effects of it, and that if and when the boom collapses only the country immediately concerned will suffer."

Baxter says that though there may be some evidence to support this view, it is doubtful whether even in the present restricted state of international trade and capital movements, national isolation from booms and slumps is very secure anywhere. "Pessimistic views about the economic future will pass national frontiers unchecked, to influence business men's decisions on both sides. More important, over-investment in any part of the world's economic system will cause the other parts to become adapted to it, so long as there is any international trade at all. It is easy to see for instance, that the American steel industry may be 'over-built' in consequence of orders connected directly or indirectly with European rearmament; but there may be less obvious cases of other industries whose increased exports to Europe set free resources there for armaments making. Thus expansions and contractions in all international trading countries are linked, whatever the exchange system. Isolation from the international repercussions of rearmament or disarmament is an illusion."

ARMAMENTS TRUCE NEEDED

The chief danger ahead, Baxter thinks, is that of a top-heavy structure of production in which the distribution of the stream of real resources between the capital goods industries and the consumption goods industries will fail to correspond to the distribution of the stream of money income between saving and spending. Though in some cases readjustment may be indefinitely postponed, most countries will have to deal with the inevitable recession when it comes.

Baxter continues, "The most hopeful beginning and the most hopeful guarantee for the success of a recovery policy, anywhere would be an effective armaments truce or armaments convention containing economic clauses embodying international agreement." The agreement would aim at three main results: firstly, the liberation and expansion of international trade in order to facilitate the diversion of war plant to peace-time production; secondly, a plain statement of national policy by the principal economic countries; thirdly, an exchange of information between them.

"The alternatives," he concludes, "to an armaments truce and some international economic understanding such as is here suggested are plain. Either rearmament will have its natural consequences in a world war precipitated perhaps by the economic breakdown of one of the competitors, or the burden of armaments expenditure will become so intolerable in the poorer countries as to produce widespread hardship with incalculable political consequences. It is certain that the economic problems that would be raised by a return to international common sense in this matter are not insoluble, given the very modest degree of co-operation which would be assured by an armaments truce itself.—United Press.

Big Problem In Military Preparations

The problem of how to protect from aerial bombardment one of the largest and most important of German factories, the Leuna Ammonia Works, covering four square miles, is being seriously studied by the authorities.

First erected in 1916 to produce synthetic nitrogen out of the air by the Haber-Bosch process, the Leuna Works have now expanded to one of the largest chemical plants in the world, using the resources of soft coal in the Saale River basin.

Like every chemical factory, the Leuna Works are a maze of open-air pipe-lines, distilleries and factory buildings quite impossible to camouflage. A primary reason for choosing in 1916 the present site of the factory was its distance from the frontier, writes the Sunday Times Berlin correspondent.

DEFENCE OF LEUNA

Now matters have changed. The Leuna Works can be reached by modern bombers from the Czechoslovakia border within twenty minutes. Since Leuna is the heart of Germany's newly created synthetic products industry, the problem of defending the works is an important chapter in Germany's military preparations.

Questioned on what plans had been made to defend the Leuna factories in case of war, the directors of the plants stated:

"All we can do is to build our plants in such a way that, if bombs should fall on any part of them, the damaged department can be taken out of production and a substitute can increase its output, so that production in other parts of the plant will not be held up. The main job, of course, is up to the Air Force, whose duty it is to see that enemy planes never reach the factory."

The directors insisted that no anti-aircraft guns were in position near the plant, but they admitted that they would be rushed to the neighbourhood should war break out.

In the days before the Nazis assumed power the German Army, which, under the Treaty of Versailles, was forbidden heavy artillery, prepared well-moulted hide-outs for the guns they hoped to own some day. It must be assumed that since those days preparations have advanced.

It is true, German experts declare, that Germany is still short of divisional artillery; but Leipzig is one of the main centres of the German motorised army, and the Leuna Works, with its numerous plants established in the neighbourhood, would certainly be protected with anti-aircraft guns a few hours after mobilisation.

SALTPETRE AND ALCOHOL

The plant is really a combination of several factories. Its main products are synthetic saltpetre, synthetic petrol and lubricating oils. They are made from bituminous coal, taken from the pits in Central Germany. In addition, artificial fertilisers are produced. They are derived from the synthetic saltpetre for the production of which the factory was originally built.

In 1916, when Germany was in desperate need of saltpetre for ammunition, Fritz Haber and Carl Bosch discovered a method of producing nitrogen and saltpetre from the air. Then, when saltpetre was no longer needed for the manufacture of explosives, chemists turned it into artificial fertilisers, which play an important part in Germany's fight for self-sufficiency.

In 1923 the Leuna Works started producing synthetic alcohol, which are used chiefly in internal combustion engines.

To-day they produce 370,000 tons of petrol annually, which, added to the benzine produced in other German plants, provides Germany with a total of 1,000,000 tons annually, or about half of her present needs.

Boy Of Seventeen Jumps 6,000 Ft.

Seventeen-year-old Albert Gourd, of Eastern-street, Bristol, had always wanted to do a parachute drop.

So he did it, from 6,000ft. over the Clifton Suspension Bridge, Bristol.

HE landed on the roof of a house in Woodland-road, Bristol, and there remained hanging until rescued by means of a ladder.

Gourd, who is a member of the R.A.F. Reserve at Filton, said he had only been up once before, and had told his friends that he would do a jump.

"They kept chipping me," he said, "so I did it. I asked the R.A.F. if I could jump, but they refused."

"I went up this evening as an air gunner. The pilot did not know what I intended to do."

Risked Life To Hang A Dummy

Undergraduates who looked out of their windows at Keble College, Oxford, were shocked to see what appeared to be a body hanging by about seven feet of rope from a gargoyle on a lofty tower above the quadrangle.

On investigation it was found that the "body" was a dummy. Some unknown climber had achieved a dangerous feat in which one false step would have led to real tragedy.

There have been other climbing escapades at Keble, and the college has been put to great expense repairing damage done by early-morning "mountaineers."

Godiva A Doubtful Starter

There may, after all, be on Lady Godiva in "nude" fleshings, mounted on a white charger, when Teddington, Middlesex, carnival takes place next month.

On the eve of choosing the girl to fill the role from the 18 applicants, the Fife Committee is discussing whether, after all, such a figure is "quite nice."

Last-minute qualms have been raised by a storm of protest by residents.

People who have helped with the carnival in previous years have refused to help this year unless Lady Godiva is withdrawn from the procession.

Mr. Ernest Green, retired business man, of Connaught Road, Teddington, has written in protest:

"Is our memorial hospital and health centre to be thus used for debasing the young womanhood and manhood of Teddington under the guise of charity?"

BIG GOLD RUSH

What prospectors describe as a rich gold strike has been made in the Franklin River area in the west of Vancouver Island.

There has been a rush of engineers and prospectors to the spot, cables the Sunday Dispatch Vancouver correspondent.

The Dominion Government report describes the area as possessing "a remarkable mineralised mass, justifying thorough prospecting."

Assays give high values of gold and silver.

Everything about the Mauretania is on the imposing scale. The main gear-wheels interposed between the turbines and the twin-propeller shafts are the largest ever built for a liner, measuring 46-ft. in circumference and weighing 85 tons each.

The propellers, which are now being cast in London, weigh 25 tons each and are equal in size to those of the 81,000-ton Queen Mary.

So forward is the work in the ship that she is already receiving her launching coat of paint.

In view of the important Admiralty work now proceeding in the yard, it is probable that when the ship is launched naval vessels will be screened off by scaffolding and canvas.

Three Lipsticks Jailed Him

Seventeen-year-old Russell Burdick, who held up Miss Ruth Cary at the point of a revolver and stole her purse, has been sentenced to ten lashes and twelve months' imprisonment at Lindsay, Ontario.

His "haul"? Three lipsticks.

A new picture of President Edward Benes, troubled President of Czechoslovakia. He recently told 40,000 school children who called to congratulate him, in Prague, on his forthcoming 54th birthday, that "every citizen of this country may be sure of his constitutional rights and all nationalities are called to co-operate, so they can enjoy full freedom."

TRAMP WHO MET CZAR PUSHES A BARROW

Strange Career Of "The Vagabond"

There lives in Newbury a man whose story must be one of the strangest in the world—Mr. William Brockway, of Kennet Road, 6ft. 6in. giant, who likes to be called "The Vagabond."

For thirty years he has wandered through Europe, the most educated tramp who ever walked the roads by day and night.

Now he is married and settled. To-day you can see him wheeling a barrow through Newbury streets. Yet this man speaks nearly all the languages of Europe, is a specialist in antiques and precious stones, has been miner, soldier, smuggler, artist, model, translator and author.

SECRET MESSAGE

He once acted as a secret service agent for the Czar Nicolas of Russia, to whom he delivered a secret message at Kiel when the Czar went there to attend a regatta.

He sat for eight months for Dame Laura Knight. He has posed for Augustus John, and the Hon. John Collier.

He is a member of the secret underworld of tramps in Germany, France, Belgium, Holland, and Britain. He is respected by apaches in Paris.

His amazing life really began when, at the age of sixteen, he was left penniless and alone in Germany. Brockway has smuggled indigo and saffron from Luxembourg into Holland and France. With a friend he made £200 in three weeks running a tipster racing stunt.

He has found and sold valuable antiques.

One night, many years ago, he met Lowenstein the financier, who later leaped to death from his airplane in mid-Channel. Lowenstein gave him a packet of cigarettes. Inside was a £5 note and two sovereigns.

In an hotel in Epping Forest one day Brockway resented a word spoken by a negro. He felled the negro with one blow. It was Jack Johnson, the boxer, once heavyweight champion of the world.

Lenin crossed his path in the old fortifications of Metz, where hunted men from all parts of the world used to hide in safety.

Lenin was accompanied by a young man named Sipino, who fired a bullet at King Edward VII (then Prince of Wales) in Brussels.

VALUABLE SCRAPBOOK

Brockway the Vagabond has a crudely kept scrap-book, the pages of which are crammed with the letters and photographs of half the great public figures of Europe during the last thirty years.

Its value as an autograph book must be considerable for in it are the signatures of Cabinet Ministers, sportsmen, Royalty and detectives.

Quite recently "The Vagabond" found three Henry VIII period window frames thrown on to a rubbish heap. He bought them for a hoop-la stall in Salisbury for sixpence each about six dozen genuine Wealden mugs, and sold them for 10s. each.

FRANCO

Foreign Power

London, July 8.
General Franco has definitely assured Great Britain that he will not tolerate foreign intervention or domination in Spain in the event of an insurgent victory.

It is stated in unimpeachable quarters that this assurance has been conveyed to Mr. Neville Chamberlain by the British Agent in Burgos. Sir Robert Hodgson, and it is believed that Sir Robert assured the Prime Minister that the majority of General Franco's followers supported these sentiments.—Reuter.

GRATEFUL TO CANADA'S OFFER TO TRAIN PILOTS

London, July 7.
In the House of Commons to-day, asked by Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labour Opposition, if the Canadian Government was prepared to afford facilities for the training of pilots for the R.A.F. in its own establishments, Sir Kingsley Wood, the Minister for Air, replied in the affirmative.

Sir Kingsley added that a reply had been sent to the Canadian Government, expressing warm appreciation of its offer.

Arrangements were being made, in accordance with the suggestion by the Canadian Premier, Mr. W. Mackenzie King, to send immediately an officer to Canada to explore the possibilities of working out a scheme.

Not Wanted
In JapanYoung Irishman In Custody Two Weeks

Mr. Frederick "Pat" O'Hara, the young Irishman who aroused the suspicions of the Japanese Government to such an extent that he was requested to leave the country, arrived in Hongkong this morning on the Rangoon on his way back to England.

Mr. O'Hara would not comment on his experiences in Japan and merely said, "I'm afraid I have nothing to say."
Mr. O'Hara was the resident secretary in Japan of the Liverpool and London Globe Insurance Company.
By filming scenery in the fortified zone in the vicinity of Yokohama Mr.
O'Hara was being fined, however, he was held in custody for two weeks on a charge of violating the Military and Naval Secrets Protection Law, and his correspondence, road maps, films and photographic apparatus were seized.

Following his conviction and fine
Mr. O'Hara was notified his presence in Japan was undesirable and he is now on his way back to England.

EMPIRE
NEWS

Sydney, Apr. 21.
The relation of defence to Imperial foreign policy will be one of the chief subjects of discussion in the Federal Parliament on April 27.

Mr. Curtin, Leader of the Opposition, made a statement to-day on loan policy in view of the meeting of the Loan Council this week. He said he was opposed to the idea of States being asked to curtail their borrowings by the amount which the Commonwealth desired to raise by an internal loan for the defence programme.

Mr. Curtin declared that Australia must not be asked to finance defence at the expense of the States' unemployment relief works and the nation's proper economic development.

The Navy is proposing to establish an anti-submarine school on the lines of that at Portland and to train an expert personnel in the technique of anti-submarine work.
Three vessels of secret design will be built at Sydney, equipped with the latest anti-submarine devices, equipment will also be stored at the chief ports with which to convert merchant ships to anti-submarine flotillas in wartime.

April Rains.—Driven before a cyclonic gusty wind the best April rains for some years swept Victoria.
Easter attractions were ruined, but the deluge was welcomed by graziers and wheat farmers. The rain came after a six-weeks' dry spell which had burned up pastures and held up wheat sowing.

Motor Grand Prix.—Peter Whitehead won for England here to-day the Australian Grand Prix, driving supercharged 1,500 c.c. B.R.A. The race, the first road race for cars ever held in New South Wales, was run on the new Mount Panorama circuit near Bathurst. It was over 150 miles.—Reuter.

FASTER AIR MAIL

Cape Town, Apr. 21.
The first air mail delivered by the accelerated Imperial Airways schedule arrived at Cape Town today, five and a half days after leaving Southampton.

The flying boat Coriolanus—the last of the three machines used by Imperial Airways on their section of the service—arrived at Durban at 2.50 yesterday afternoon, two hours ahead of schedule. The mails were brought on to Cape Town by South African Airways to-day, and arrived here early this afternoon.

Motor Marathon.—Cape Town competitors in the Round the Union Motor Marathon are beginning to trickle in to the finishing post. They report a terrific struggle against atrocious road conditions. In places the mud was three feet deep. The whole Johannesburg contingent, which was due at Kimberley at 11 a.m., had not been heard of late this afternoon. The drivers are probably held up by flooded rivers in the Karoo.

SEVEN DEAD IN RIOT
AT BOMBAY

Bombay.
The death toll in the Hindu-Moslem rioting in Bombay over the week-end is now seven. The injured number 100.

Police patrols are guarding strategic points. British troops are being held in readiness. Curfew has been proclaimed, and 200 disorderly persons have been rounded up.

The Government's prompt action prevented the spread of rioting, which is now under control. For days past the City has been placarded with an appeal to Moslems to capture power everywhere.

Orissa Governorship.—The objections stated at the time to the appointment of Mr. J. R. Daini, Revenue Commissioner, to act as Governor of Orissa during the absence on leave of Sir John Hubback, over the heads of Ministers to whom he was subordinate, are likely to develop shortly into a serious situation unless a solution is found. Feeling among Ministers is said to be summarised by the view of one of them that he was not prepared to face "the humiliation" of such an appointment. It is believed that the problem may be solved by the transfer of Mr. Daini to another province in exchange for an "outsider" as temporary Governor.

Dominions Have Room For Refugees

Nations Collaborate At Evian

At to-day's meeting of the Refugee Conference, which is seeking homes for thousands of outcasts from their native lands, the Australian delegate dwelt on the difficulties of immigration to Australia.

The Australian Government, however, realising the unhappy plight of German and Austrian Jews, has included them on a pro rata basis comparable with that of any other country.

The Canadian representative alluded to the difficulties of receiving considerable numbers of refugees, though Canada was ready to collaborate in the efforts of the Committee. He urged that countries sending refugees to Canada should contribute to the cost of their transfer, and also suggested collaboration with the League of Nations organisation.

The Brazilian delegate said that Brazil had an open door for agriculturists, although they would have to give an undertaking that they would not quit their occupation for four years.

The Belgian delegate spoke of the number of German and other refugees received by Belgium. The Netherlands delegate declared that Holland had already admitted 24,000 German refugees, and suggested that the Netherlands should be regarded as a transmigration country.

The Argentine delegate pointed out that Argentina already had the largest immigrant population of any nation, and declared that the Argentine declined to receive immigrants who objected to being assimilated with Argentine nationals. —Reuter.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNS

The Refugee Conference has adjourned until 10 a.m. on Saturday.

Professor Heinrich Neumann, the famous Vienna car specialist, has arrived here at the head of a delegation from the Jewish community of Vienna, with an appeal to the Conference to facilitate the emigration of Jews from Austria.

Professor Neumann told Reuter that the delegation had gone to Evian purely in a private capacity, but with the approval of the Vienna authorities, which promised to assist the emigration of Jews from Austria.

A similar delegation has arrived from Berlin, according to the Jewish Telegraph Agency.

A World Jewish Congress delegation is also here and, in a statement issued to-day, expressed appreciation of the British and American delegations' view that Germany and other emigrating countries should permit refugees to take out their capital.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, on behalf of the World Zionist Organisation, submitted a memorandum to the Conference, drawing attention to the possibilities of Palestine settlement as a solution of the Jewish problem. —Reuter.

Capt. Benn To Command H.M.S. Argus

Captain W. G. Benn last week relinquished the post of Director of Navigation, Admiralty, which he has held since 1935, on his appointment to command the aircraft-carrier Argus, on her commissioning this month for trials and service as a training carrier and parent ship for radio-controlled aircraft.

Captain C. E. Morgan, D.S.O., late in command of the cruiser Enterprise in the East Indies, is the new Director of Navigation. He was captain of the Enterprise when she conveyed the Emperor of Abyssinia from Jibuti to Haifa in 1936. Captain Morgan was decorated for his services during the War as navigating officer of the 1st Light Cruiser Squadron, Grand Fleet, in H.M.S. Caldon. As a commander he was fleet navigating officer in the Home Fleet in H.M.S. Nelson, and was promoted in 1932. He attended the Imperial Defence College during 1934.

Group Captain F. Sowrey, D.S.O., M.C., A.F.C., has been appointed to the command of Tangmere air station, Chichester, after two years as Senior Personnel Staff Officer with No. 23 (Training) Group, Grantham. He succeeds Group Captain K. R. Park, M.C., D.F.C., A.D.C.

Group Captain Sowrey gained the D.S.O. as a night-flying pilot of the R.F.C. for the destruction of Zeppelin L 32 at Billerica on September 23, 1918. Later in the War he served in France, where he commanded No. 143 Squadron during 1918 and gained two further decorations. He has also had post-war service in Egypt and Iraq.

GROUP CAPTAIN PAYNE

The retirement is announced at his own request of the Group Captain I. G. S. Payne, M.C., A.F.C., commanding the Air Armament School at Eastchurch. He has had over 25 years' service in the Army and Air Force.

Appointed to The Suffolk Regiment, Special Reserve, in 1912, he passed the Sandhurst entrance examination a few months later, but from January, 1914, served as Extra A.D.C. to the Governor of Ceylon. He rejoined his regiment in October, 1914. Seconded to the R.F.C. with effect from April 22, 1916, he gained the M.C. and A.F.C. for distinguished services in France in 1917-18. In 1919 he was granted a permanent commission in the R.A.F., and he was promoted to squadron leader in 1925, wing commander in 1933, and group captain in 1937.

NAVIGATION SCHOOL STAFF

Squadron Leader A. W. Bates, who has been serving with flying-boats at Singapore since 1936, has been appointed to the School of Air Navigation for flying duties. From 1916 to 1923, when he retired voluntarily, he served in the Navy, from cadet to lieutenant. He then joined the R.A.F. with a short service commission, and was awarded a permanent commission in 1930 after duty as a flying instructor at home and in Egypt. His promotion to squadron leader was dated August 1, 1936.

BRITISH AID FOR CHINESE

Australian and Indian Medical Units To Serve

London, July 7. The anniversary of the Sino-Japanese war was marked by special articles in several papers dwelling on the unprecedented Chinese national will to resist as being the most remarkable feature of the war, while decisive victory still eludes the Japanese armies.

Mr. Quo Tai-chi, Ambassador to London, conducted a memorial service at the Embassy at noon with a three-minute silence in honour of the Chinese dead.

The Lord Mayor's Fund approaches £130,000, including over £1,000 from British doctors alone. The organisers draw attention to the steadiness with which contributions keep rolling in weekly, giving evidence of the widening appreciation of the Chinese need. Leading provincial cities, for example Manchester and Birmingham, are actively co-operating.

Australia is sending a unit to China in October, including a portable hospital, with wards, operating theatre, X-ray equipment, motor ambulances and a staff of trained nurses.

An Indian doctor, Madan Atal, will shortly take the first Indian medical unit to China, consisting of several motor ambulances, dressing stations and over 100 young Indian doctors, who have already volunteered to accompany the unit. —Reuter.

THIRD POWER
INTERESTS

Reports of Franco-Japanese tension, or at least irritation, may or may not have good foundation. It is most difficult to judge. Reputable Chinese sources declare that a Japanese fleet has been sent back to Hainan waters because of the French action of sending police to the Paracels to guard the meteorological station and other equipment there, and the men who are in charge. But such action by Japan presupposes an intention on her part to make some sort of display in Hainan as a reprisal; and it would seem very senseless, for the French are vitally interested in the preservation of Hainan's freedom from Japanese domination, and in that have the backing of Great Britain. The situation in China is too critical to allow Japan to get herself involved elsewhere. Therefore, reports of a Japanese concentration in Hainan waters, and French moves to counteract any possible menace, should be accepted only with the reservation that the Chinese sources whence these stories come may have been misled. On the other hand there is no use blindly refusing to believe that difficulties may develop in this sphere. It has long been suspected that Japan covets Hainan, and the French at Kwongchow and the British at Hongkong and at Singapore have apparently felt some concern lest the expanding power of Tokyo should plant the flag of the Rising Sun on Hainan soil. Not that France or Britain wants the island. They simply want to see it in safe hands. It is conceivable, then, that France might take steps to prevent its occupation, particularly with British support, and the report of French planes massing at Kwongchow and French warships patrolling between that Colony and the Paracels therefore cannot be dismissed as mere fiction. There are signs, too, that Britain does not intend to allow

THE people in England who want to save most for a rainy day are the 1,000,000 workers engaged in building and the other 1,000,000 who are indirectly affected.

At present the weather is fine. Buildings are leaning towards the sun all over the country. Those engaged on the constructional side of the business go out in the morning with reasonable certainty that they will work under God's heaven all day and take home a full pay-pocket at the end of the week.

But when the weather breaks—what then?

BEFORE Mr. Hicks tells you about his scheme for insuring building operatives against bad weather—it has been agreed between the unions and the employers and is now the subject of a national ballot—let me give you his expert opinion of what the rainy day means to the builder. "Rain and snow, frost and fog mean more to us," said Mr. Hicks, "than they do to most folk. To the majority of people they mean just a little discomfort and the warm appeal of the cosy fireside. To the building worker they mean 'standing off.' He is temporarily discharged and thus loses time and money. One can appreciate what the loss discrimination to be shown against her indefinitely in the Yangtze and other Chinese inland waters where the Japanese are pursuing their war of invasion. The answer which the Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs gave to questioners in the House of Commons recently was illuminating. It appears that Britain has seriously considered placing armed ships in the Yangtze for the purpose of conveying merchantmen about their legitimate business. Apparently the only reason why this matter has not been carried farther is because merchants engaged in the Far East trade have not yet demanded it. That is the construction which must be placed on Mr. Butler's answer.

As for these questions of trading rights and the very vexed problem of customs levies and the distribution of the revenue from this source, it is necessary that they be approached with the utmost patience by all parties concerned. Particularly is patience necessary with Japan at this juncture, when her attention is very fully taken up with the prosecution of a war and when her own patience is probably not inexhaustible. Britain only wants to be certain that her rights will be safeguarded. China's rights are quite another matter, and do not enter into the Anglo-Japanese equation.

of half a day's pay means in the home. But when it is a question of days, sometimes weeks, of bad weather the worker suffers real privation.

"No wonder that we in the building industry are more afraid of the 'depression over Iceland' than any other worker."

"Now there is fresh hope."

MR. Hicks explained why in answer to a Here they are:

"Surely, Mr. Hicks, the building workers and their trade unions have endeavoured to arrive at some solution of this 'wet time' problem?"

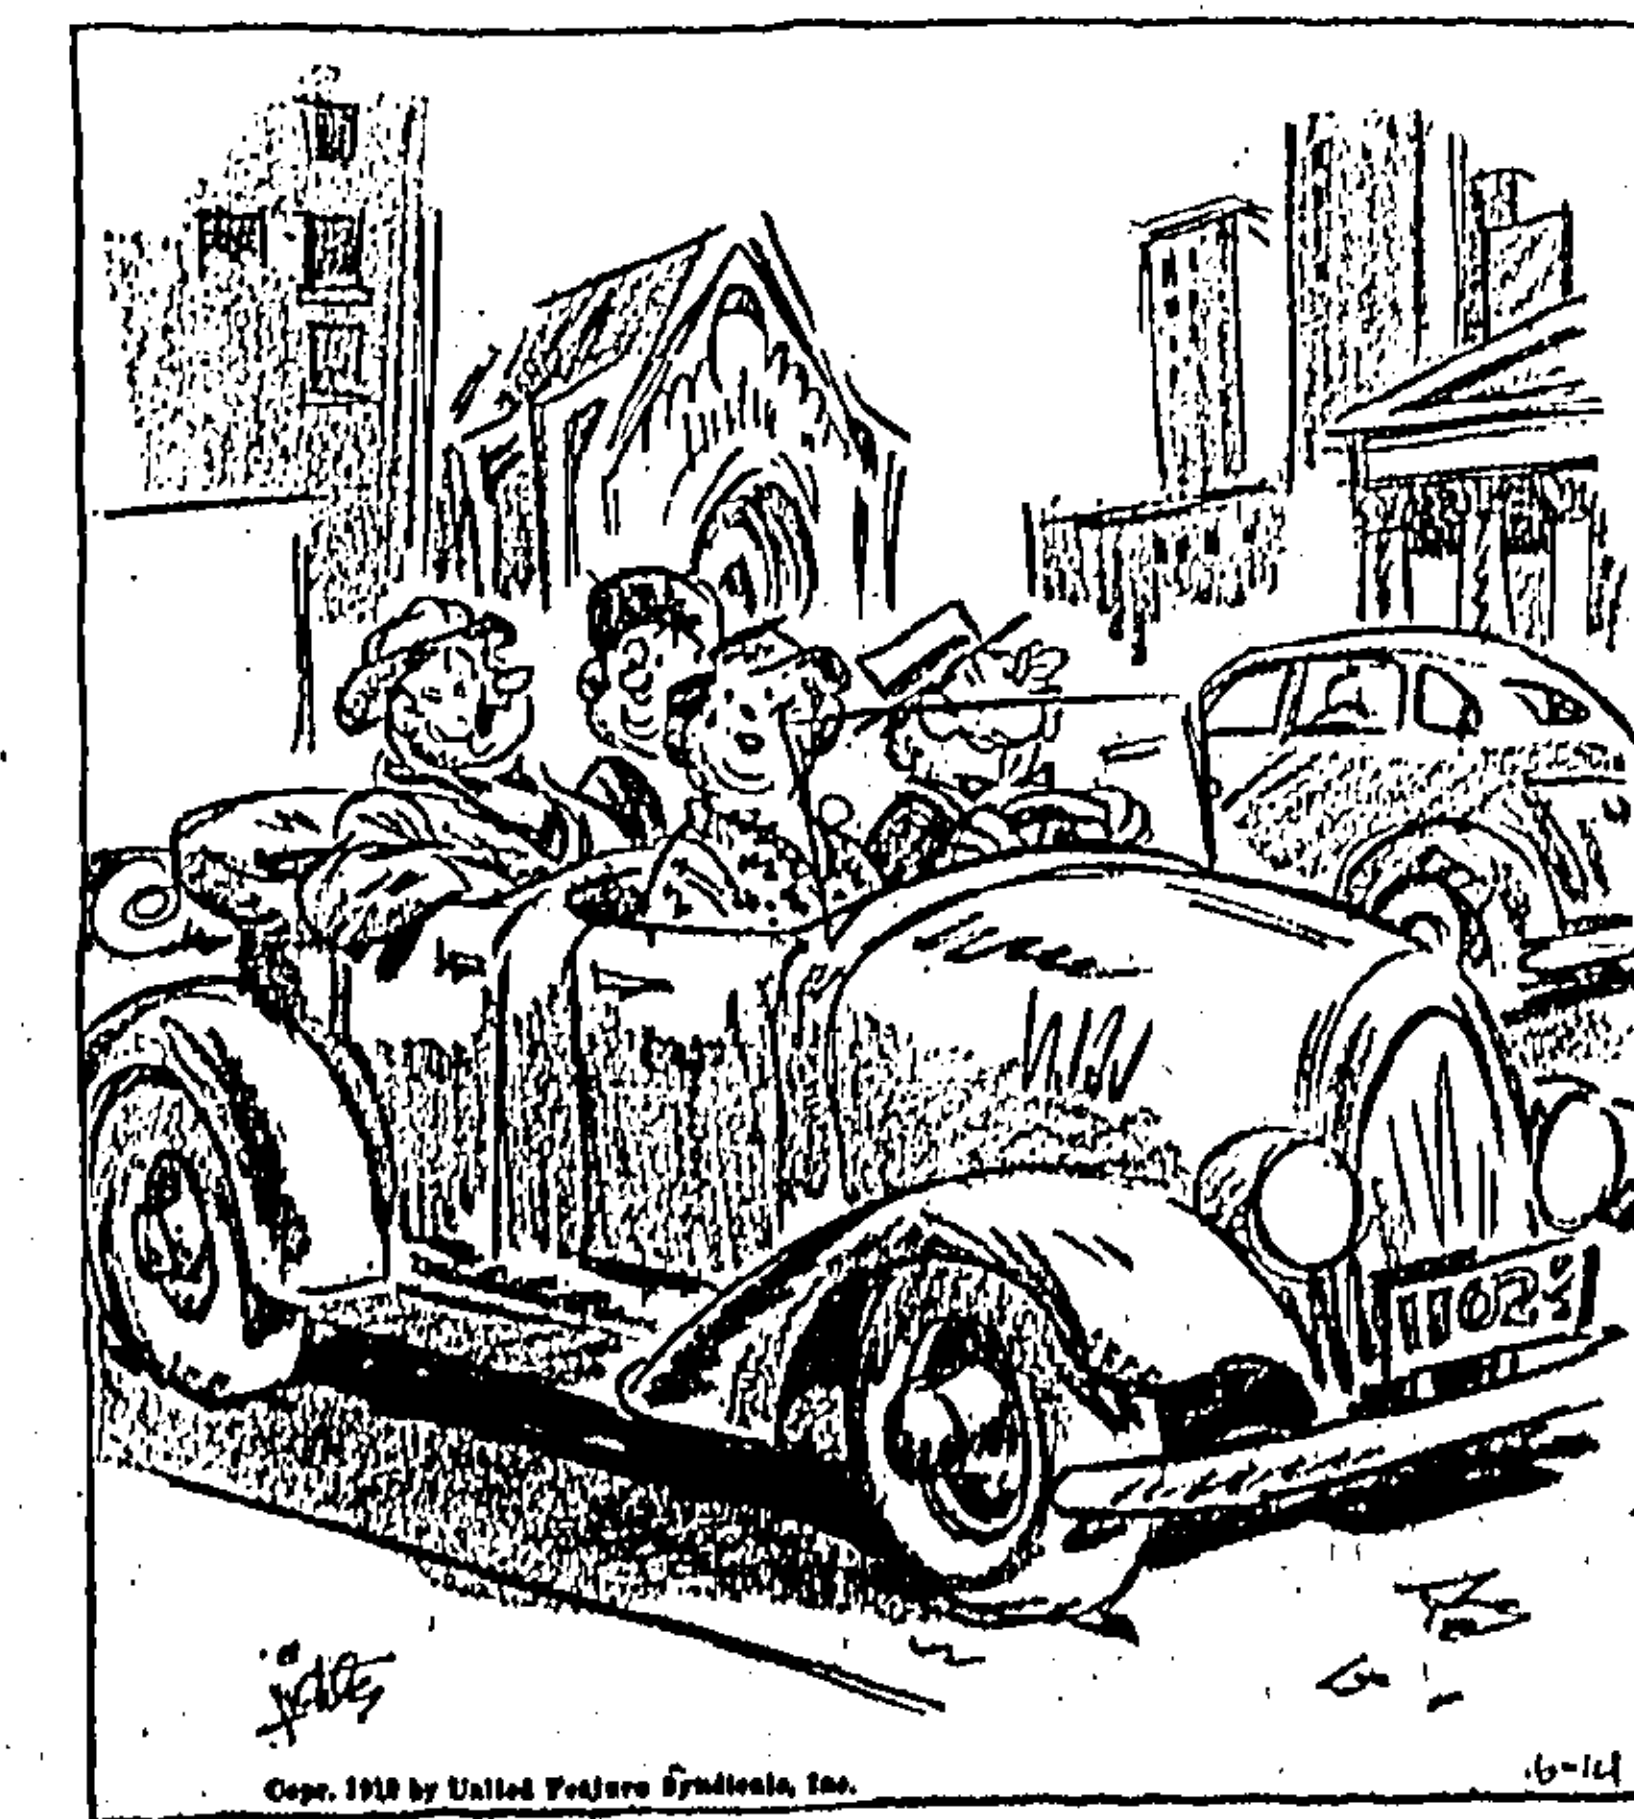

"Certainly we have—from every angle. First during the war. Later, when Lord Addison was Minister of Health we had discussions with the Government. We demanded 100 per cent. payment for time lost through inclement weather. But nothing happened. After the National Building Trades dispute in 1924 we tried to embody a scheme for 'wet time' payment in the terms of settlement, but without effect. Since then we have kept hammering away. Actually, it was agreed in 1926 with the employees to be on a joint contributory basis, and in 1929 the Joint Committee of Employers and Operatives urged the need for a system of national insurance to the Ministry of Labour. We have at last arrived at the present scheme."

"What does it amount to?"

"What it amounts to, in brief, is this. A fund will be created which, it is estimated, will total £2,000,000 annually."

"How?"

GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"You'd never see the rights in Hongkong if we didn't visit you and show you around!"

RAIN MEANS RUIN
TO THESE MEN

Practically unknown to the general public, half a million building workers in England are now voting on a scheme to end the misery of wages lost through bad weather.

The scheme has already been agreed between the employers and the union leaders. The men are giving their view through a national ballot, but the issue is not in doubt.

"By contributions. Towards the fund the employers will contribute half, the building workers the other half. The craftsman will pay 6d., the labourer 4½d., and the apprentice or junior 2½d. weekly. The employer will contribute an equal amount to that contributed by each craftsman, labourer or junior, as the case may be. In short, the workers will pay about £1,000,000 annually, the employers a similar sum."

"How will the scheme work?"

"The scheme will be national in scope and apply to the entire building industry, trade unionist and non-unionist alike."

"How will those who have lost time make the fact known? How will the records be kept?"

"The responsibility will be upon the employers to keep proper records of the time lost by their workers."

"How will those who have lost time be paid?"

"They will be paid by the employers. They will receive the money at the same time as they receive their wages."

"To what extent will they be paid for lost time? What will be the rate of benefit?"

"OBVIOUSLY, if the scheme is to be a workable one, it is only reasonable to pay somewhat less than the amount which would be earned by working. That is essential to check 'knocking off' for frivolous reasons."

"It is proposed, therefore, that the rate of benefit for lost time through bad weather shall be 9d. per hour for craftsmen, 7d. per hour for labourers and 4d. for youths between 16 and 21."

"What guarantee have the workers that their interests will be safeguarded?"

"On each job a steward will be elected either by the workers themselves or by the representatives of the trade unions affiliated to or under the auspices of the National Federation of Building Trades Operatives."

Mr. Hicks added that workers would not be able to draw lost time benefit and unemployment insurance benefit at the same time.

His other points must be summarised for lack of space.

THE scheme is to be operated by a Joint Board composed of an equal number of employers' and operatives' representatives. There will be no Government representative. It will start 12 months after the scheme's inception to allow time for the Fund to accumulate.

Let me end this interview with Mr. Hicks calling all building workers. Here he is.

"I regard this scheme as the greatest proposal for reform ever made in the building industry. To many an old bricklayer or labourer the very idea of being paid 50 per cent. lost time will seem like an inspiration from on high. The scheme will be, in my opinion, the first big step in the direction of permanency of employment in the building industry. It will provide us with the basis for de-casualising the industry and moving towards the guaranteed week."

Good luck, Mr. Hicks!

REDUCTION OF
NOT DISCUSSED

London, July 7.

The International Sugar Council, which met in London on Tuesday to consider the working of the Sugar Agreement, and to hold preliminary discussions regarding its policy for the second sugar quota year, which opens on September 1, is now considering the estimate of market requirements made by its statistical committee.

Figures have not yet been published, but a meeting of the Council in May estimated that the market requirements would be 3,050,000 metric tons, compared with the estimate of 2,250,000 metric tons made on March 26.

It is understood that the question of a further reduction of the quota has not yet been discussed.—Reuter.

RADIO DIFFUSION
SCHEME STILL A POSSIBILITY

That Government may introduce a Radio Diffusion system—a form of wired wireless by which radio broadcasts are received over telephone or power circuits—is indicated by the fact that the sum of $5,000 is still included in the estimates for the purchase of the necessary equipment.

The vote was originally included in the 1937 estimate, but in the Draft Appropriation Account, tabled in Legislative Council this afternoon, the statement is made that the amount is being held in abeyance pending Government's final decision on the scheme.

The vote for $5,000 has, however, been reduced to $4,772 by an unexplained expenditure last year in connection with the scheme.

It is recalled that a Radio Diffusion scheme was introduced to Hongkong by the Telephone Company three years ago, but remained in existence only a few months, owing to lack of support from the public.

Home Office Architect Scorns A.R.P. Plans

"LIKE PUTTING UP UMBRELLA AT VESUVIUS"

London, June 14.
"So far as air raid precautions are concerned, in my opinion, either we should do nothing or else go the whole hog and go back to the worms, before our time—become cave men again."

This is what Sir Samuel Hoare, the Home Secretary, and head of Britain's A.R.P. schemes, would have heard one of his own departmental officers declare at a conference of architects last night, but for a time limit on speeches.

As it was, Mr. Frederick T. Bush, deputy police architect to Scotland Yard, caused a sensation by attacking the whole principle of A.R.P. and denouncing Sir Thomas Inskip as a hypocrite.

MEANT TO SAY MORE

"But for a three-minute limit I had intended to say much more," he told a correspondent early to-day. "It is time someone lifted the veil on these things. I only wish Mr. Bernard Shaw had been my guest at the meeting, for he is the greatest debunker of to-day."

"I should like to see him appointed as Minister of De-bunking with a retaining fee equal to the price of a battleship. We should save the taxpayers' money hand over fist."

NO REFERENCE TO WATER

"I spent Sunday afternoon thinking over this matter, and I came to the conclusion that the time had come to be frank about War Office, Defence, and A.R.P., and bare it to the bones."

"Can A.R.P. protect the community from the horrors of war? The answer is undoubtedly no. 'No reference has been made to the protection of the sewer, gas, water and electricity supplies—because they cannot be protected."

NOTHING PROOF AGAINST BOMBS

"I do not think buildings can be made proof against the devastation of high explosive, short of burying them in the bowels of the earth."

Sir Samuel Hoare suggests in a broadcast that we should all dig trenches in our gardens, fortify our homes. I cannot visualise my family wandering out to a cold, damp trench in the middle of the night. "Further by such action I am no longer a non-combatant, but I am lawfully prey to an enemy, according to international law, because I am manning a virtual fort."

"I for one must refuse to take part in another war in this way. I cannot be so indecent."

SAW MEN GO MAD

"Probably the first appointment he would make would be a Minister of Lunacy, because what they omitted to mention last night was any reference to the necessity for big extensions to the asylums as part of the precautions. 'The human machine is not made to withstand modern warfare."

"Twenty years ago I saw my own friends become lunatics under the strain. If a man's disaster ever happens again I am quite sure we shall create tens of thousands of lunatics."

PLEASED WITH NIGHT'S WORK
Mr. Bush is an important official. When I asked him whether he was jeopardising his position by this attack, he replied: "I don't know. I sincerely hope not. But in any case, I must stand by my principles."

"After the meeting I went home and told my wife, 'I have done the best evening's work of my life. An opportunity came my way, and I had the courage to go through with it.'"

MONEY WILL BE WASTED

"As architects, we are taught to use our imaginations. 'It doesn't require much to see that all the expenditure on A.R.P. will be wasted in a few years' time."

"The Defence Minister has hinted himself that we have many famous scientists at work devising more devilish ways of killing. Doubtless other countries can say the same. 'The results of their work will certainly demand new types of defence and the scrapping of present methods."

"Sir Thomas knows all this, and he is president of the Crusaders' Union, to which I send my children. I detest hypocrisy and I believe that Christianity cannot be reconciled with war."

"My fellow architects are here to improve amenities. I would ask them to climb above this muck and filth. Let us call a world conference of architects and tell the men whom we honour with gold medals every year that we are as anxious to preserve their masterpieces as much as we are our own."

THE CHURCH HAS FAILED

"The church has failed by playing its usual Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde role. I would appeal to the architects to make this great gesture for international understanding."

"We all know that to design a building which is proof against enormous bombs is about as effective as putting an umbrella under Vesuvius. The only protection lies in peace."

"I cannot run my home without love and affection, and the sooner our Ministers and Church Ministers and all of us realise that the world cannot be run without it also, the better."

"LACKING IN COURAGE"

"We want this country to give the world a great lead in applying Christian principles."

WAZIRISTAN FRONTIER HERO

Mother Says He "Did His Job"

For day after day, in a lone frontier block-house among Waziristan's wild hills, a young British officer, with only 60 Indian troops, has been holding at bay a swarm of rebel tribesmen backed by the firebrand Fakir of Ipi.

When news came that the tribesmen had at last been driven off, the officer's mother in London told the Sunday Dispatch:

"He is of rather a retiring personality. I am sure he will not like all this publicity."

The officer, Lieutenant Godfrey Lerwill, his father, Squadron Leader F. W. Lerwill, and his mother live at Bedford-park, Chiswick. Once, in the thick of the fighting, Lieut. Lerwill's garrison made a dash for it.

Yet to the Army he is simply a young officer carrying out a job of work efficiently.

"QUIET BOY"

Here is how the hero is described by his mother:

"He is 27 now, unmarried, and has been in the Indian Army for seven years."

"He went to Sandhurst from Eastbourne College."

"Always very keen on the Army, he was a clever, persevering boy, rather quiet."

"He was home on leave this February—the first in three years—and went back to India on April 14."

OUTPOSTS ATTACKED

"Yes, I suppose he has been brave, but I'm sure he will only consider he has done his job well."

Said to be accompanied by the fugitive rebel Fakir of Ipi, hostile tribes have now gathered in fighting formation near Datta Khel, North-West Frontier.

There has been a renewal of activity in the Datta Khel recently. Scout outposts have been attacked and an Indian force has suffered several casualties, including five Indian other ranks killed in an encounter with tribesmen.

Wife It Told She Failed, Will Try Again

"With those eyes, and serve him, love, honour and keep him in sickness and in health."—The marriage vow.

A young wife who was reminded of her marriage vows and told that she had failed badly at Birmingham police court when her husband was charged with attempted suicide, was later happily reconciled.

When she said, "I don't feel inclined to go back to him now. He has been a coward," she was rebuked by the clerk (Mr. F. May), who told her that she should love and cherish in sickness and in health as she had promised.

The husband, Stanley Wilfred Barlow, a motor body builder, of Elmway Road, Sheldon, Birmingham, had been discharged on giving an undertaking that he would not attempt to commit suicide again.

REBUKED

Married only 10 months ago, he fell ill with rheumatism two months afterwards and spent nine months in bed. His wife, he told the Court, went back to her mother.

Mrs. Barlow said, "I did as much as I could."

"You talked badly," commented Mr. F. P. L. Hickinbotham (Magistrate). Mr. Barlow, who is 24, said afterwards: "We are reconciled now and we are going to begin again. It has done us both good and I think we shall make a happy marriage of it after all."

"In my opinion if the Pope had taken a courageous stand, the Abyssinian war and the troubles arising out of it would, I am convinced, never have come to pass."

"I am afraid he hadn't the heart, and neither have most of the ministers of the Church of England. Well, some one else must take the lead."

Mr. Bush, a grey-haired, sincere, and a great friend of the late Dick Sheppard, fought with a Canadian regiment during the war.

Konrad Henlein, militant leader of the Sudeten German party in Czechoslovakia, leaving Winston Churchill's home in London, on his surprise visit there. Later he hurried to Prague for a parley, when war seemed imminent.

Call for Minister of Shipping

'We Have Lost Pacific Trade'

Urging the appointment of a Minister of Shipping, the Council of Officers (Merchant Navy) Federation claim, in a report issued recently that the future of British merchant shipping is the most vitally important issue facing the Government.

"Neglect will constitute a crime against humanity, the punishment for which will be the desperate but unavailing wrath of 50,000,000 starving people," the report says.

While admitting that shipping—excluding the short sea trades—is in a comparatively prosperous state at present, the council regards the real state of British shipping with the utmost concern.

This country has 2,000 fewer ships than in 1914 and 28 per cent. instead of 44 per cent. of the world's tonnage; 80 per cent. of the Indian-Far East trade is in the hands of the Japanese; and the liner trades in the Pacific are almost wholly lost to foreign competition.

"DEFEATIST REMEDY"

Voluntary laying-up of ships is described as "a defeatist remedy, designed essentially to preserve profits at a time when the nation needs to preserve and increase the number of its ships and seamen."

"If the situation were less alarming from the national point of view such a proposal could be regarded as grotesquely amusing."

"As a nation dependent on 100,000 tons of imported foodstuffs and raw materials daily, it would be suicidal to lay up a single British ship with world affairs as they are."

"It is hopeless and dangerous for British shipowners to imagine that they can, unaided, successfully combat the organised and determined competition of nations resolved to wrest the trade from our hands. History relates few instances of sea power once lost being regained."

It would seem obvious, it is stated, that the first step really to preserve our shipping might well be to place one man—a Minister of Shipping—in a position of sole responsibility to the Government for the maintenance of British shipping in "good heart."

The council does not urge the nationalisation of shipping—"that would inevitably be a political issue, and the position is far too serious to be permitted to be one of party controversy."

"CUT-THROAT" COMPETITION

After remarking that shipping might ultimately find it necessary to reorganise itself, in self-preservation, to place a public corporation, akin to the Central Electricity Board or the London Passenger Transport Board, the council states:

"A Minister of Shipping, with Cabinet rank, would be charged with the sole duty of protecting and developing British shipping, in the nation's interest, with due regard to the interests of shipowners and of officers and men."

"The present proposed remedy of saving the industry by laying up the ships by which it lives clearly shows the need for a man, armed with the knowledge and power, to urge fundamentally curative measures."

Referring to "unorganised cut-throat competition" in the home and short sea trades the council expresses the view that a complete reorganisation of this section is necessary.

An industry that could only endure by accepting inadequate freight, and by impeding what were virtually slave

Japan Seals Lips Of Her Wounded

The Japanese Army for reasons unstated, is exercising extreme caution to prevent returned soldiers from talking about their experiences in China.

It is reported that the men have come back much chastened and a little uncertain about the glories of war.

But owing to the Military Secrets Protection Law, plus certain less formal restriction, the soldiers are not openly discussing their sentiments. Certainly no information about reverses, defeats, blunders or unusual casualties has passed the lips of any returned men.

Military hospitals, where the wounded lie, are not exactly closed. All you have to do to get in is to write applications to the War Office and the Medical Affairs Board and to the particular hospital you want to visit. You state your nationality and your reason.

Nationality is very important. German and Italian groups—large groups—have been passed through smoothly. Apparently, this is one of the advantages of subscribing to the Anti-Comintern Pact.

Then you have to wait ten days. The War Office replies that you have its permission. The Medical Affairs Board also answers affirmatively, but requests notifications of the specific day and hour of the visit.

Finally the Commandant of the hospital informs you he will be happy to receive you at that time. Of course, you cannot go into a ward to talk with the patients.

But you can sit in the Commandant's office, chatting with him about this spring's cherry blossoms to your heart's content.

The restrictions are almost as tight for the Japanese themselves.

When a man goes to see a friend or relative, wounded in the war, a medical officer sits by while they talk. This, the visitor is told, is to prevent the patient from becoming tired from too much conversation.

No Carfare, Gets Divorce

BOSTON.
Mrs. Germaine L. Sanders testified in probate court that her husband had $50,000 but would allow her only $1 a day for household expenses and refused to give her a dime for carfare. She was awarded a divorce—and $10,000.

conditions on its employees, must be overhauled.

WAR WORK AND DEFENCE

Our costwise fleet might well be called on to perform work of the highest importance in time of war, including the effective distribution of food supplies.

The report mentions that many thousands of officers have completed the defence courses set up in association with the Admiralty.

They have readily availed themselves of the opportunity to familiarise themselves with the latest developments in the defence of merchant ships, and will acquit themselves as valiantly, if the need arises, as they and their predecessors did in the past."

Never before, it is stated, have officers' conditions of service improved with the speed and to the extent that were evidenced during 1937.

BUSSON, BURTON & COX LEAD GOLF FIELD

37 Qualify For The Final Stages Of British Open

BREWS SETS A NEW COURSE RECORD

THE DETAILED SCORES

Sandwich, July 7.

Only 37 competitors out of 120 qualified for the final stages of the British open golf championship here to-day. The qualifying score was 148 for 36 holes, and among prominent players who failed to return this, or a better score, were James Bruen, the 17 year-old Walker Cupper, Eddie Whitcombe, who was one of the leaders in the early qualifying rounds, Arthur Havers and James Braid.

J. J. Busson, Richard Burton of Sale and W. Cox led the field at the close of to-day's play, each returning an aggregate of 140 for the two rounds.

Cotton's score was not included in the early returns.

Records were beaten and equalled during the day. Brews, in shooting a 70 to aggregate 146, did the homeward nine holes in 33 strokes which is a record for the championship links.

Cyril, Tolley, former British amateur champion and Walker Cup player had a 68 to total 145 and to equal the amateur record for the course.

TEST OUTLOOK IS GLOOMY

Lots Of Rain At Manchester Affect Wicket

Manchester, July 7.

The outlook for the Third Test is gloomy. It has rained intermittently for several days and it rained all night long on Wednesday and again before the forenoon to-day.

These downpours prevented the English and Australian players from practising at the nets.

The Old Trafford wicket is a natural wicket and has not been "doped" with mail for four years. It is therefore certain to be very soft.

In accordance with the rules the wicket will be covered at 11.30 in the morning, until the start. Police will guard the wicket during the night.

The majority of the tickets have been sold, and the authorities hope that weather permitting, the crowd will be in the region of 40,000.

Rain Stops County Cricket Games

London, July 7. Rain affected several of the county cricket matches in England to-day, and prevented play in the following games:

Derbyshire v. Sussex
Gloucestershire v. Kent
Hampshire v. Middlesex
Warwickshire v. Essex
Worcestershire v. Yorkshire

Close of play scores in the other matches were:

Northants 119 and 147, Lancashire 116 and 20 for 0
Notts 462 for 9 declared against Leicestershire.

Dear Tommy Farr—

I SHALL be at Southampton meet and greet you, and to hear from your own lips an explanation of your surprising defeats at the hands of the two boxing veterans, Jim Braddock and Max Baer.

Those shocks have surely shaken your confidence. They did mine.

People—you know what gossip means—are saying that you are back here for a few weeks because neither America's fight dictator, "Uncle Mike" Jacobs, nor its hard-boiled fight-loving public, is now interested in your future!

Three fights and three defeats don't help bally-hoo. You know this as well as I do. Neither in America nor Britain.

I know there were doubts about the correctness of the official decision when you were declared the loser against 33-year-old Braddock.

As you know, Jim was pugilism's "Cinderella Man" even when he was matched with fleshy Max Baer for the world heavyweight title three years ago.

Yet after the punishment Joe Louis inflicted upon "old man" Braddock before stopping him in eight rounds, I was confident you had the speed, stamina, ability—and Youth—to account for Steve-dore Jim.

I want to turn back a few leaves of the calendar. When I met you on the Queen Mary after you had temporarily paralysed American boxing writers by lasting 15 rounds with "Brown Bomber" Louis, you confided in me that you were sure of winning the world title.

It doesn't look that way now, Tommy, does it? Nothing less than a miracle will put you on the championship track again. What is the more puzzling to me was Baer's decisive victory.

YOU had made him appear a good "has been" with your convincing win over him in London during the April of 1937.

Yet in the ring at Madison Square Garden, New York, Baer did something that Louis failed to do—sent you crashing to the canvas; not once, but three times!

I'm not forgetting that he couldn't keep you down for the full count. None of your opponents has been able to do that.

Which reminds me: British boxing prestige—there is still some left—is justly proud that you showed those 100 per cent. American sports writers that you were not just another British horizontal heavyweight.

Yes, I am pleased you will be in Britain again. Mollowed, I feel sure, after the rebuffs and, not infrequently, adverse criticism that has greeted you in America.

I believe that I know the real reason for your return. You are anxious to fight once more in London... the city that gave you your first big chance.

You want a return, I understand. With the burly German, Walter Neusel, whom you sensationally

AN OPEN LETTER

from

James Butler

"Three fights and three defeats don't help..."

defeated in three rounds last June.

I don't know whether this match will make much of an appeal to the cash customers of the ring. For the actual result does not mean a thing.

Then there is another important situation that is sure to affect you. You will be asked to explain to those august legislators, the stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control, your personal ideas with regard to the defence of your two titles—the British and Empire crowns.

You will know as soon as you arrive—if you already haven't the information—that Ben Foord, the South African whom you defeated for those two titles, is matched to oppose Eddie Phillips, in what is known as the final clinimating championship eliminator.

This does not sound very exciting or alluring, does it? For whoever is victor I must confess that I am not acquainted with any promoter at the moment who will offer several thousand pounds for the championship proper contest.

I may be wrong or misinformed, but I seriously doubt whether there is now lots of money in London for heavyweight matches. There was last year. You can give first-hand evidence confirming my statement.

That was before you sailed away to meet Joe Louis, after you had turned down an offer of some £5,000 and a few extras to meet the Nazi boxer, Schmelling, at the White City.

As I have written earlier in this letter, dear Tommy, three successive defeats in New York haven't increased your drawing powers at the box office: the only genuine register of any boxer's financial valuations.

Had you beaten either Braddock or Baer, it wouldn't have been too bad. You see, it is the general opinion—and public opinion is usually fairly correct—that you have dropped back into the place you occupied before you tackled Louis.

Still, I must admit that you are still the one drawing card in the British heavyweight division. I will go farther, and add that if you decide to have a fight in the immediate future, either in Cardiff or Swansea, the largest football grounds available would not be big enough to accommodate the thousands of your countrymen who still have faith in your ability and who want to see you in the ring in your native Wales.

The purse money would not be fantastic. You have not to be told why. You yourself have known what it is to feel hungry in the Rhondda mining villages. Do you remember the many quiet talks we had in a small room in Fleet-street, when you longed for the nights when you might be fighting for a £100 purse!

Do you remember how you said that often your only meal before a fight in Wales was one kipper? Since then you have reached stardom—mainly through your dogged ways, and, shall I say it?—super-confidence.

You have tasted the luxury that is associated with a successful international boxer. And, I am assured, have saved a substantial fortune.

I am glad, and hope that you will have it behind you when the inevitable time arrives when you must destroy your fighting kit as being of no further use to you.

That time may not be so far off as you may dream at the moment. For unless new heavyweight talent is quickly discovered and developed, I can tell you that public interest in your class will evaporate.

There is no room in the sport for the veterans. That understanding individual, the Man in the Street, demands action, destructive punching, and youthful Endeavour if he is to continue his patronage.

Recent affairs between various heavyweights have not contributed to an increase in enthusiasm. You can restore this fading interest if you can reproduce that dynamic form you so brightly displayed when battling against Baer and Neusel at Harringay; Joe Louis, in New York.

If you can do this, then there will be no need for you to return to America seeking matches or longing for a fight with the winner of the Louis-Schmelling world championship battle.

You had better destroy this pipe dream, Tommy. Because if Louis retains his title—notwithstanding that the Nazi knocked him cold in twelve rounds on June 10, 1938—the American public will prefer Max Baer to you, for they have longer memories than we have.

BEFORE concluding, Tommy, I shall be interested with the inside story of your romance with Miss Eileen Wenzel, the £18,000 New York showgirl.

Will she really and truly, as the story books say, become Mrs. Thomas Farr and visit your old friends in Tonypandy—and elsewhere?

Also I nearly forgot... and have you forgotten your faithful trainer, Tom Evans?

Will be seeing you. Yours fraternally,

Jimmy Butler

BRADMAN IS IN REVOLT

Demands Removal Of "No Wives" Rule

THREATENS TO STOP PLAYING

London, July 7.

Don Bradman, illustrious Australian Test cricketer and captain of the present team now touring England, is in revolt.

According to a Reuter Special message, Bradman is at loggerheads with the Australian Cricket Board of Control, which refused his application to waive the rules to enable Mrs. Bradman to visit him in England.

The Test cricketers' contracts forbid players contact with their relatives during the tour.

It is understood that Bradman threatens to refuse to participate in future tours unless the "No Wives" rule is removed.

Neither Bradman, nor Mrs. Bradman will comment on the situation, but the Australian newspapers are giving headlines to the subject.

The Sydney Sun, dealing with the question, refers to "Our sporting dictators."

Islington Corinthians Count Cost

Lose £750 On World Football Tour

Islington Corinthians, who on the World's tour, travelled 35,000 miles to play ninety-five matches in China, Japan, Canada, India, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Egypt, the Philippines and the U.S.A., have lost £750 on the trip. As the seventeen amateurs mostly Athenian and Isbman League team players won sixty-eight of the matches, lost only eight, and drew nineteen, they fully deserved the congratulations of the F.A. President, Mr. W. Pickford, when he met them at Southampton, and said "You have carried Association football round the world and we are proud of you."

As throughout the tour, the Islington Corinthians performed excellent missionary work, it is expected the F.A. will make grant towards the club's loss. One player, J. Sherwood, the top scorer, has now signed professional forms for Reading; thirteen of the others have returned to their usual work, but three, unfortunately, find themselves out of employment.

Composite picture showing a scene from "The Good Earth", and the stars, Luise Rainer and Paul Muni, who are featured in the film which is showing at the King's Theatre to-day.

OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"The Good Earth" (King's Theatre).—A picture of remarkable merit which automatically goes on one's "Must" list. Faithful reproduction of Pearl Buck's famous best-seller, and some vivid portrayals by Luise Rainer, Paul Muni, Walter Connolly and a fine supporting cast.

"Oil For The Lamps Of China" (Queen's Theatre).—This wonderful film has its first showing in Hong-kong and will rightly take its place as one of the best cinema entertainments the Colony has enjoyed for a long while. Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Jean Muir give outstanding characterisations.

"Hunted Men" (Alhambra Theatre).—Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle and Lynne Overman in a mixture of drama and sentiment, with sentiment finally triumphing to convert the "bad man" into a hero.

"Everything Is Thunder" (Majestic Theatre).—Nest contribution from British studios, which, apart from anything else indicates the technical advance in Home productions. Oscar Homolka gives a stirring performance and convincing parts are played by Constance Bennett and Douglas Montgomery.

EMPIRE NEWS

AUSTRALIAN TRADE WITH U.S.

Sydney.
The decision of the Federal Government to revive the position of Australian Commissioner-General in the United States by the appointment of Mr. R. McGregor, at present Australian Trade Commissioner in Canada, is believed to be due to the hope that it will assist the forthcoming trade negotiations between Australia and the U.S.

It is expected that Sir Earle Page, Minister for Commerce, will return from London via America, and will report on the whole subject of Australian trade.

Sir Henry Gullett, formerly Federal Minister for Trade Treaties, has urged the Government representatives not to repeat in the revised Ottawa Agreement the grave injustices which the old one caused both to Australian manufacturers and British exporters. He believed that Canada was enjoying undue preference in the Australian market.

Japanese Pearl-Is. Australian pearl-ers, who have been subjected in recent years to intense Japanese competition in North Australian waters, have learnt that 116 Japanese pearl-ers have left the Caroline Islands for Australia. The Japanese are expected to buy their oil supplies at Darwin in consequence of restrictions at home due to the war in China.

Leading Jockeys Killed.—Two of Australia's leading jockeys, Ray Wilson and S. Kite, a South Australian, were killed when several horses fell during a sprint race at the Adelaide Cup meeting at Morphotville to-day. Wilson, who comes from Victoria, only arrived this morning to ride the hot favourite, Irving, in the Adelaide Cup. Irving fell, in both the Cup and the sprint there were 13 runners. —Reuter.

Laughing and gay here are Federal troops leaving Valles, San Luis Potosi, in a troop train bound for the hills in the Mexican state to start military operations against General Saturnino Cedillo, leader of the Insurrectionists. President Cardenas issued a manifesto calling upon all rebels to lay down their arms. But General Cedillo, who has revolted against "dictatorship," is leading an army of 14,000 armed Indian peasants, ready for warfare against Federalists in the hills.

ROUND-UP OF S'HA1 SUSPECTS

Shanghai, July 8.
The arrest of more than a thousand suspicious characters and the tentative formation of a special section to carry out investigations into recent terrorist activities were among the major achievements of the Shanghai Municipal Police yesterday.

Arrests were made in a score of raids and after almost endless searches of alley-ways and side-streets, tea-houses and other gathering places of the loafer and gangster elements.

Commencing shortly before 9 a.m., about two hours after the last bomb was thrown in the early morning wave of terror, police raiding parties were active throughout the city.

The round-up of suspicious individuals was the biggest in Shanghai's long and colorful history.

After the mobilisation of troops, the police reported that the rest of the day passed peacefully.

After dark, armoured cars joined the Seaforth and the Russian regiment of the S.V.C. which with other units of the volunteers, patrolled the streets between every intersection.

Groups of police with drawn pistols searched pedestrians and motor-cars. Following the withdrawal of Japanese troops, which mounted guard on the Bund after the bombing of the Yokohama Specie Bank, thirty Japanese plain-clothes gendarmes entered the International Settlement and joined in searching the Chinese.

The Japanese all wore armlets bearing the insignia of the Rising Sun.

GUERRILLAS ATTACK TAIYUAN

Sian, July 8.
Confusion reigned in Taiyuan city on July 2 when a strong Chinese guerrilla force suddenly made its appearance in the eastern and southern outskirts.

Taken by complete surprise, the Japanese garrison there suffered many casualties and lost a large quantity of ammunition.

The city gates were closed whilst fighting was going on in the suburbs. The guerrillas retired upon the arrival of a large number of Japanese reinforcements.—Central News.

Ex-Advisers Due Here

It is learned from Canton that the special express from Hankow which is carrying the German former advisers to the Chinese Government, headed by Baron von Falkenhausen, will arrive in Hongkong at about 12.30 p.m. to-day.

The train passed Shekpi at 8.30 a.m. to-day, says Reuter. It was delayed yesterday on the Kwangtung border after Japanese aircraft had bombed the Canton-Hankow line and damaged it extensively.

PLEDGES AID TO CHINA

Hankow, July 8.
Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek yesterday received a cable from the International Peace Campaign, signed by Lord Cecil, pledging assistance to China.

Another cable from the French branch of the International Peace Campaign expressed "profound admiration for Chinese solidarity and sacrifices."

Mr. Lin Sen, the President of China, received a cable of sympathy from the Friends of China Association in Paris.—Reuter.

KIND WORDS WILL NOT BUY OFF DICTATORS

—Says Churchill

Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking at Sheffield last month, described the Air Force expansion plans as "lamentably inadequate" and said that, even now, the right methods of rearmament were not being used.

"A Ministry of Supply to grapple with the whole problem of armament production is still refused, and refused on the astonishing ground that there is no emergency," he said.

Doctor Struck Off at 67

By H. L. McNALLY

"This is a cruel sentence, but my work will go on. More good work has been done in my institute than in many of the consulting-rooms of Harley-street."

In a broken voice, grey-haired, 67-years-old Dr. Henry Numan Collier, of Chalfont St. Peters, Buckinghamshire, told me this in an ante-room of the General Medical Council in Hallam-street, W.

This man, fifth generation of a family of doctors, had just heard the dread sentence of the Council that his name be erased from the Medical Register for "infamous conduct in a professional respect." Even the eloquence of his counsel Lord Reading, had failed to save him.

The charge against him which the council held proved, was that he was medical adviser to the Institute of Endocrinology, Baker-street, W., that he obtained patients by advertising, and that he countenanced treatment being given by an unregistered person.

"WHAT WILL THEY THINK?" Dr. Collier had stood gripping the edge of the little "dock" while some 60 of his most distinguished colleagues watched him impassively. In secret they considered their verdict, then waited for Sir Norman Walker, the aged president, to announce it.

Dr. Collier swayed a little as he heard the Registrar directed to erase his name from the Register. From that moment he was no longer a doctor. He walked in a daze into the ante-room, where an aged woman gripped his hands in silent sympathy. For a while he was unable to speak.

"What will my family think of me?" he said to me. "I attended a great many stars of the theatrical profession. What will they think of me now? It is very cruel for me, one of a family of doctors. My great uncle was the first doctor to use chloroform with Sir James Simpson (pioneer of anaesthesia in 1847) in Edinburgh."

"But I shall continue my work with the institute. I have had so many letters of sympathy and encouragement from patients that I must go on."

Evidence was given that Dr. Collier wrote to the council: "I consider I have been doing nothing contrary to the honour of the profession. I have never had my name on any advertisement scheme. But if the council do not consider I have a right to do the work I am doing, kindly accede to my request remove my name voluntarily so that I may not freely."

"AT MY AGE—" Mr. Bryan Percy, the patient, said he answered an advertisement by the

"The anxieties of the public are quieted by the appointment of a new Air Minister and by the association of a well-known figure, Lord Nuffield, in the work of air production, and hardly a day passes without some grandiose paper scheme."

Mr. Churchill said it was certain that, just over a month ago, the Nazi party of Germany were swaying and balancing on the verge of some stroke at Czechoslovakia, which might have led to the gravest consequences. The action which the British Government took was in accordance with the highest principles of the Covenant of the League, and the fact that the situation was for the moment easier was a proof of the virtues of collective security even when exerted in an emergency from and apart from any general system.

SOMBRE FIGURES

"The idea that dictators can be appeased by kind words and minor concessions is doomed to disappointment," he said. "Volcanic conditions are alive in the world. Sombre figures are in the heads of powerful States. The dictators are preparing night and day to advance their ambitions, by peace if possible, by war if necessary."

"What are we to do to prevent war, and, if that cannot be achieved, to survive it?"

"There must be a policy and a practical plan. This plan is three-fold. First, Britain must be rearmed and strong at the earliest possible moment; secondly, we must stand by the Covenant of the League, which alone justifies a great rearmament; and, thirdly, upon the basis of the Covenant, we must unite ourselves with other countries, great or small, to assure our desire for peace and freedom, with countries who are prepared to arm in accordance with the Covenant and take concerted measures in order to resist unprovoked aggression."

THE WEAK IN PERIL

"The present is a dark hour to proclaim such a policy. Our own defences are not good, the Covenant of the League has been broken and the League seems to be suffering while the weak everywhere are in peril."

"Yet I believe that, with resolution, we may restore all that has been lost." Referring to the decision of the A.E.U.'s objections to joining arms talks Mr. Churchill said that the trouble arose because there had not been spread throughout the land a consciousness of a cause far above the interests of any nation—the cause of freedom.

Institute which said that treatment could be given in any town in Britain and that only one visit was necessary to the institute.

He was suffering from dyspepsia and paid 15 guineas on account for 30-guineas course of treatment. The institute sent him pills and tablets which did him good and ampoules for injections, given by a nurse at Grantham which did not. He refused to pay the balance, was sued, alleged fraud and the institute withdrew the action and repaid the 15 guineas.

Dr. Collier said he was paid a salary but no commission on patients seen. "At my age I cannot go into practice—it is difficult to get anything."

JAPANESE DELIVER WARNING TO FRANCE

OCCUPATION OF ISLANDS DANGEROUS

Tokyo Foreign Office Spokesman Explains Japanese Position

Tokyo, July 8.

Regarding the question of the French occupation of the Paracel Islands, the spokesman of the Foreign Office stated last night: "The French Ambassador, M. Charles Arsene Henry, called on the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Kensuke Horinouchi, on July 7, and verbally notified the latter that the Government of French Indo-China has appointed an administrator of the Sei Sha To (Paracel Islands) and has despatched more than ten Annamite policemen there and established a lighthouse, buoys and a wireless station, thereby effecting definite and complete occupation of the Islands by France.

"The French Ambassador stated to the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs that Japanese nationals had for more than ten years been engaged in the collection of seaweed and rock phosphate on the Islands but that their interests would be respected.

"With regard to the French verbal communication, the Foreign Office invited the French Ambassador to the Office yesterday and the Vice-Minister handed the Ambassador a note which set forth clearly the views of the Japanese Government, on which occasion the Vice-Minister discussed the question at some length with the Ambassador.

"The Vice-Minister called the attention of the French Government to the possibility that the stationing of Annamite policemen on the Islands is likely to give rise to some unexpected misunderstandings between them and the Japanese nationals there, and expressed the hope that the police force will be withdrawn."

French Note

It is understood that the Japanese note recalls that the French Ambassador sent a note to the Japanese Government in September of last year regarding the Paracel Islands. This note said that France claimed territorial rights over the Islands but would not occupy them before settlement of the dispute then going on between China and France regarding the title to the Islands.

Hard To Understand

The Japanese note says that this French note does not change Japan's position regarding the Paracels, over which the Japanese Government had been negotiating with the Chinese Government as a party.

The Japanese note states that the Japanese Government finds it difficult to understand the real intentions of the French Government which, in the midst of the Sino-Japanese conflict, has taken a step inconsistent with the French note of last September, and has now communicated to the Japanese Government the French occupation of the Paracels.

The Japanese note further points out that the Japanese forces have been suspending traffic of Chinese vessels off the South China coast since last August, and adds that the Japanese Government will take appropriate measures in case of necessity to enforce the said suspension of traffic in future or to protect the rights and interests possessed by Japanese nationals on the Paracel Islands.—Domei.

HIT BY DOOR HANDLE

Injuries to the right arm were received by Kong Fai, 55, of Hollywood Road, when he was struck by the door handle of car No. 3250 yesterday. He was sent to Queen Mary hospital.

GUERRILLAS CLOSE TO SHANGHAI

Dispersed By Planes And Warship

Hankow, July 8.

Heavy fighting broke out between Chinese guerrillas and Japanese troops at Kiangwan on the night of July 5, according to a Shanghai message.

At 9 o'clock the next morning, when fighting was still continuing, nine Japanese planes flew over the field to bomb the guerrillas whilst a small Japanese warship steamed into the Wantaoing Creek to shell them.

To avoid unnecessary losses the guerrillas dispersed.

Chinese planes reconnoitred over Woosung, Yanghong, Taxung, Chapel and the western district of Shanghai both in the afternoon of July 6 and the morning of July 7. Japanese anti-aircraft guns fired ineffectively at them.—Central News.

JAPANESE BEATEN BACK

Shan, July 8.
Repeated westward drives from Linfen along the Fen River in central Shansi have been made by the Japanese without success.

On July 3, a mixed brigade of Japanese infantry, cavalry and artillery captured Tientow and Matwal west of Linfen. In a counter-offensive, the Chinese drove out the Japanese and re-occupied the two villages. More than 140 Japanese were killed in the encounter.

At the height of the fighting, a unit of about 300 Japanese rushed up to reinforce their comrades, but was intercepted by the Chinese at Chienowtsun and Chienowtsun.—Central News.

JAPANESE SURROUNDED

Chongchow, July 8.
The Japanese at Nanyangchuan, south-west of Shaoyuanchen in north Honan near the Shansi border, are now surrounded by the Chinese.

The Japanese, assisted by artillery pieces, launched a fierce attack on the Chinese on Wednesday, but were repulsed.

Following this success, the Chinese threw a cordon around the invaders. Meanwhile, preparations are being

RETIRING ADVISERS ARRIVE

German Party Here
From Hankow

After delays, bombings, and misreports of arrival, the Swastika Special, carrying the German former advisers to the Hankow Government, steamed into Kowloon station at 11.50 a.m. to-day.

The wives and relatives of the advisers, who had travelled from Hankow last week on the international refugee express were waiting at the platform.

The arrival of the advisers was quiet. None of them would make any statement.

General Baron von Falkenhausen, the adviser-in-chief, refused to say anything beyond pointing out that he would have to ask for police aid against any questioners.

Altogether there were 29 Germans on the train including the technical experts and non-military men. They had all decided to return to Germany when the Nazi Government decided to withdraw advisory assistance from General Chiang Kai-shek.

Included among the men who arrived to-day were two Jews.

All of the Germans will return to their native country as soon as possible by boat, though the necessary booking facilities have not yet been made.

STATEMENT EXPECTED

It was learned that an important statement from the German advisers will be issued officially either through the German Consulate in Hongkong or through the Trans-Ocean News Agency in the course of the next two days.

The advisers received every courtesy from the Chinese Government up to the time of their departure and had no cause for complaint of their treatment.

Members of the German Consulate welcomed the party.

CANADA'S UNEMPLOYED are creating a difficult problem. Recently some hundreds of them seized the General Post Office (where they slept) and other public buildings in Vancouver, B.C. They demanded relief, food and shelter. When they did not get guarantees of these they rioted and fought with police. Authorities assert that many of these "unemployed" are paid agitators, some of them Americans. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating the whole situation, while the British Columbia Prime Minister, Mr. T. D. Pattullo, says: "If you want to work, go on the land." But the men want jobs in the cities.

EXPLAINS CONFLICT IN INDIA

London, July 7.

A recent dispute between the states of Sikar and Jaipur was the subject of a statement in the House of Commons to-day by the Under-Secretary for India, Lt.-Col. Muirhead.

He said: "Trouble broke out in April between Jaipur Darbar and the Rao Raja of Sikar, who is the Feudatory of the Maharaja of Jaipur and whose Thikana is part of Jaipur State.

"The cause appears to have been the degree of control Darbar exercises over Thikana.

"As a result of the informal intervention of the Resident in Rajputana, Rao Raja left Jaipur on April 29. On May 25 the Jaipur Government appointed a commission under the Chairmanship of an officer of the India Political Service to investigate the causes of trouble and to suggest remedial measures. The continued refusal of the inhabitants of Sikar to allow the re-establishment of normal administration there prevented this commission starting work on the spot.

"On three occasions on July 5 armed supporters of Rao Raja opened fire on Jaipur troops and the police, who returned their fire.

"Two Jaipur police were killed and seven wounded. Fourteen of Rao Raja's supporters were killed and thirty wounded.—British Wireless.

TROOPS, WARSHIPS RUSHED TO HAIFA IN NEW EMERGENCY

Arms Smuggled to Enemy Factions, Endangering Peace of Holy Land

Jerusalem, July 7.

The execution of Ben Joseph, who was sentenced to death by a Military Tribunal and died last week, has precipitated the worst riots in Palestine since 1936.

So far, 33 are dead and over 100 are wounded.

Two battalions of British troops have been ordered to Palestine from Egypt, in H.M. cruiser Emerald, which was en route to England from the East Indies Station, and was diverted from the Suez Canal to Haifa, where she arrived yesterday. H.M.S. Repulse is scheduled to arrive on Friday.

To-day's casualties are three dead and 16 wounded.

Those who were killed yesterday were buried before dawn in an effort to prevent demonstrations.

U.S. PLANS POWERFUL P. I. BASES

If Independence Of Islands Delayed

Washington, July 7.

It is authoritatively learned that the United States has drawn up tentative plans for the establishment of powerful military, naval and air force bases in the Philippines in the event of independence being delayed.

Strategic experts have come to the conclusion that the best measures that can be taken if the political relationship between the U.S.A. and the Philippines is lengthened would be to concentrate on aerial power.

From the financial point of view aerial power would also be most acceptable to the U.S.A., which would not suffer severe losses when she finally withdraws.—United Press.

JAPANESE FAIL TO REPORT

Geisha Girl Warned To Appear

Three Japanese residents of the Colony were charged with breaches of the Passport Ordinance at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Charged with failing to report his departure for and arrival from Macao within 24 hours, Tetsumoto Sanji, 40, clerk, was fined $5 on each charge by Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith.

Through an interpreter the defendant said: "I did not know I had to report within 24 hours. If I have known, I would have made a report."

Motomura Koroku, 42, barber, charged with the same offence was absent and had his bail of $20 cast.

A geisha girl, Nakamura Taka, 18, was not in court on the same charge and was remanded for 24 hours, as the first defendant said she was sick in bed. A warrant for her arrest would be issued if she failed to appear, it was stated.

Apparently thousands of Arabs and many Jews possess arms, despite the recent precautions by the British authorities, which included the destruction of Arab terrorist villages, the erection of barbed-wire system along the Syrian frontier and the construction of blockhouses in northern Palestine in an effort to stop gun-running.

In Jordan Valley, aeroplanes aided the trans-Jordan police in battling with a band of 200 terrorists, the leader of whom was captured. Casualties are as yet unknown.

Near Beihan a detachment of the Royal Ulster Rifles discovered 120 Arabs attempting to sabotage the Iraq oil pipe-line.

In Haifa an Arab taxi-driver was dragged from his cab and hanged by a mob.

OPEN AIR GIRL

WISE sports girls are careful in choosing clothes for summer week-ends. My advice to them is to remember that fabrics are of first importance if they want their dresses to look fresh all through the summer.

Something that will wash repeatedly is what they need, and good "wearing" materials are receiving my serious attention just now.

For bright, sunny days colours have taken on a pastel tone this year. They look lovely against the dark foliage of the river banks, effective by the sea, and for spectator sports by the swimming pool.

Ivory, too, is used as the background for gaily coloured designs and Jersey à pois is the attractive name of the Chinese fabric selected for pattern No. 1152. Brightly coloured minute dice shaped spots in five different contrasting shades have an ivory background in the material used for this little suit.

Orange, blue, brown and green are the shades in the one I have chosen. Both dress and coat have sleeves. Bodice of frock is buttoned to waist and trimmed with pockets, and the skirt has panel pleat in front only.

Collared jacket comes to just below the hips, a useful length if you are not very slim, and is also decorated with pockets to match.

Four sizes are available as this is a good style for the small woman 32, 34, 36, and 40 in. bust. Size 36 in. bust takes 5 1/2 yds. Jersey à pois.

It is not every girl whose legs are good enough for shorts, and the divided skirt is getting more popular every year. The charm of pattern No. 1153 is that when you are standing still the design looks like an ordinary skirt.

By means of deep pleats you have a dress that gives you the same freedom of movement as shorts.

You will find this style useful, too, for cycling and walking on hot days. Cut with the new yoke top, it is buttoned to below the waist, so is easy to slip on and off. Easy to get into, and out of, it doesn't spoil your hair when making a quick change.

Two sharply pointed pockets prevent the impression of width at the hipline. There is a lovely range of new colours, and here they are for your choice.

Beauty pink, the colour of apple blossom, ranunculus, which is a light tangerine, Dutch blue, lido green, new azure, oyster, reseda, tiger gold and ivory.

They will meet your requirements.

Marry Someone "Different"

A WELL-known novelist recently declared how desirable it was for people to marry who shared the same interests.

"You are always sure of sympathy and help," she affirmed, "are never short of topics to talk about, and above all, both work with the same end in view. I think it is a splendid idea."

On the surface the scheme sounds as though it would work well, but in fact, it rarely does.

As a practical case one couple, both keen classical scholars, found to their dismay that after six months marriage they were bored to tears of one another's company. They both read the same type of books, thought the same kind of thoughts, and generally acted in such perfect accord that there was a most depressing lack of stimulation.

And stimulation is what one needs if married life is to be a success. One partner should be able to open up new paths of thought for the other, to "roughen his mind" with thoughts and theories which he had not previously considered.

After all, it is dull for a man to come home to his wife, full of stories of the wonderful way he did his round of golf that morning, only to find that she knows every bunker as well as he does. The joy in the telling soon flags.

This does not mean that there should not be some harmony. There should. But a great musician will marry a wife whose only interest in life is painting, and they will get along splendidly, whereas a wife who knows too much of his subject is not to be merely an irritant, critical where she should be admiring. Opposite Interests

Naturally, because you are keen on dancing it does not follow that your only chance of happiness is to marry a man who cannot bear the sight of a ballroom. There would soon be friction over your dance partner. But it does mean that because he is a clever science master you need not worry if your acquaintance with the subject is confined to a dim recollection of once breaking a test tube. He will be only too glad to forget the subject once he gets home. And there lies the whole point of this "homogeneous" idea. A man does like to forget his daily work when he gets home. He can't, if his wife insists on talking about it in a thoroughly learned sort of way. But he can forget it if her for an all-purpose summer frock. Size 34 in. bust takes 3 1/2 yds. 36 in. bust takes 4 yds. 40 in. bust takes 4 1/2 yds. Other sizes available are: 32, 30, and 40 in. bust.

Now just a word on washing these fabrics. If you want them to retain their freshness, on no account may they be boiled.

Use good quality soap flakes in lukewarm water, and squeeze gently. Size well to remove the soap, and roll in a towel, pull the garment carefully into shape, then iron.

Your iron should be cool, and press the reverse side of fabrics, and keep the iron moving; avoid pressure over the buttons, seams and trappings.

The results will be worth the trouble taken.

Ironing Hints

CLOQUE is one of the fashionable materials for day and evening wear just now. It is seen in dresses and two-piece suits, in informal and formal functions, and it is, altogether, a member of the hard-working fabric fraternity.

The preservation of its appearance, therefore, is important, so here is a hint about ironing the fabric which is worth noting. Cloque should always be ironed when nearly dry, and you should not press too hard with the iron upon the material. The material should be stretched both ways when you are ironing it.

Crepes, fabrics, which are also very much to the fore in the summer fashion scene, should be ironed in the same way as cloque. The stretching of the material in both directions is most important, as merely sliding the iron over the material is not sufficient for these fabrics.

When you fold some garment on the ironing board be careful that you do not iron along the hem of the garment either. The hem, and the edge of the article where the fold is should be pressed, and the rest of the article should be ironed in the direction of the material. Always iron on the straight of the material.

These hints on ironing were given by Mrs. Markham, a representative from the Lux Washability Bureau of Lever Bros., during a short conversation yesterday in the fabrics department of Patrick Thomson, Ltd., North Bridge, Edinburgh.

Mrs. Markham shows the fabrics which have passed the "washability test" of the Bureau, and gives hints on laundering the various materials to anyone who cares to consult her. She will be available at the shop until Saturday of this week.

Among the interesting materials which can be seen are spun rayons, crepes, and cottons, in bright patterns, and a new material in art silk featuring a lace effect. This new fabric in pastel shades is suitable for lingerie, and it, like the others, has passed the test.

QUICK CONVALESCENCE AFTER FEVERS

Doctors will tell you that once your temperature falls it's all-important to rebuild your wasted nerve and muscle tissues.

After the fever has gone, when the stomach is too weak to digest ordinary food, but also stimulates your jaded appetite and gives your exhausted body all the nourishment it needs, Horlicks helps you to put on weight, re-establish your strength and regain your full vitality. Get Horlicks to-day.

In these difficult times of anxiety and worry, the task of carrying on and doing work which must be done is a doubly difficult one which must tend to exhaust one's nervous energy.

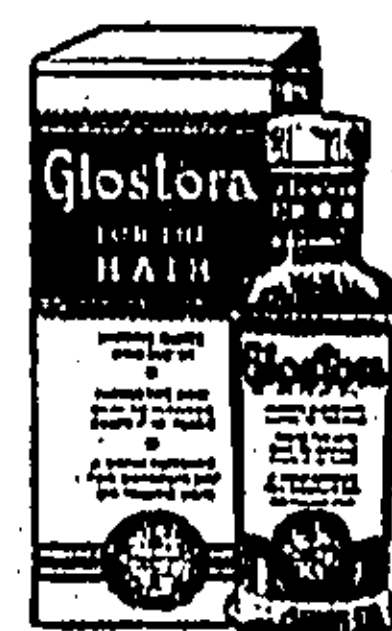

Horlicks builds up strength, vitality and prevents that listlessness and tiredness caused by constant nervous strain. H. M. Hodges, 400-408 Asia Life Building.

Glostora

Just a few drops on your brush make your hair more beautiful. It keeps the wave and curl in, leaves your hair easy to manage, so that it will stay any style you arrange it.

Refreshing Summer Drinks

IN hot weather we grow lyrical over thirst-quenching drinks, and sit up and take notice at the sound of ice tinkling against glass.

A cooling fruit cocktail is a good beginning to a hot weather lunch. It whips up the palate for the meal, and refreshes you.

For a tomato juice cocktail, strain the juice from sound, ripe tomatoes, press through a fine sieve to clear them of coarse fibre in the pulp, and also seeds. Flavour to taste with salt and pepper and a squeeze of lemon juice.

Another appetiser comes from orange and lemon juice used in small quantities. If the cocktail is unsweetened, add a few grains of pepper.

Grape-fruit juice and mint make an interesting drink. Squeeze the juice from the grape-fruit and stir in very finely chopped mint, to which a little caster sugar has been added. Pour into cocktail glasses and finish off with a mint leaf floating on each. Instead of mint, some people like lemon juice and a slice of lemon can take the place of the mint leaf.

For Those Who Are Slimming

Pine apple juice cocktail is for the slimming sisterhood. Fresh juice squeezed from the fruit is best, but tinned pineapple can be used. Drain the liquid and add sufficient lemon juice to give it a tang. Serve ice cold in cocktail glasses with potato crisps and salted almonds.

Pear and pineapple juice make good companions. And to give a pear and pineapple cocktail a good complexion, add just a touch of preserved raspberry juice, that is if fresh raspberries are not available. No sugar will be needed, and if the cocktail is not sharp enough in flavour add a little lemon juice.

A tasty short drink can be made from a mixture of fruit juices. Lemon, pineapple, orange, and raspberry juice are mixed together. A water slice of banana and a mint leaf should decorate each glass. When it comes to "long" drinks, orangeade is certain to be in request. Make this by pouring a pint of boiling water on to the rinds of four oranges. These should be pared very thinly. After covering for half a day, make a syrup with a pint and a half of water and half a pound of sugar, adding this to the rinds, together with the juice of the oranges and the juice of three extra oranges. Stir energetically, then strain and add a little extra lemon juice if you wish.

Almond Water and Mint Sherbert

Almond water is very simple to make, and pleasing to the palate. Place four ounces of sweet almonds and one of bitter almonds in a pan with a quart of cold water. Bring to the boil and simmer very slowly for half an hour. Add three-quarters of a pound of sugar and allow this to dissolve. Strain and bottle. Half a cupful of the water in soda makes a glorious "long" drink.

Mint sherbert is a most refreshing drink and takes very little trouble to make. Dissolve one pound of sugar in a quart of water and add several leaves of chopped mint. Cover the bowl for an hour, then add the juice of three fine lemons. Strain before serving.

Have you tried a coffee milk "shake"? This has the merit of being stimulating as well as refreshing. For each glass allow sufficient coffee essence to make a breakfast cup full.

Mix the coffee with unsweetened condensed milk, allowing two table-spoonfuls to each glass of water. Sugar as you wish, then add the necessary amount of cold water and whisk in a large jug until frothy. The addition of a little ice cream makes this "shake" even more delightful.

SUMMER BEAUTY

THE most important part of making-up one's face is the application of the foundation cream or lotion," said Miss Winifred Foster, one of Elizabeth Arden's London representatives, when giving a private demonstration of the new Elizabeth Arden summer make-ups recently.

"The foundation of your powder should always be carefully moulded into the face for if the foundation is put on in a haphazard manner the rouge and powder cannot look right," she added.

The use of two different shades of powder was recommended. When making-up during the day it was advisable, said the expert, to use a light shade of powder first, then apply a darker shade on top, to get the best even results. In the evening, the process had to be reversed, and a darker powder put on first, with a lighter shade on top, so that an effect of transparency and extreme clearness of skin could be obtained.

Powder should always be blended into the skin, it was stated. If it was applied carefully, it should stay on, without replenishing, for about three or four hours.

The two new make-ups which were shown on living models were called "sun tan" and "sun fair." The sun tan make-up could be used by those who were already tanned by the sun, or by those who were not, and wanted to acquire a "healthy, open-air look."

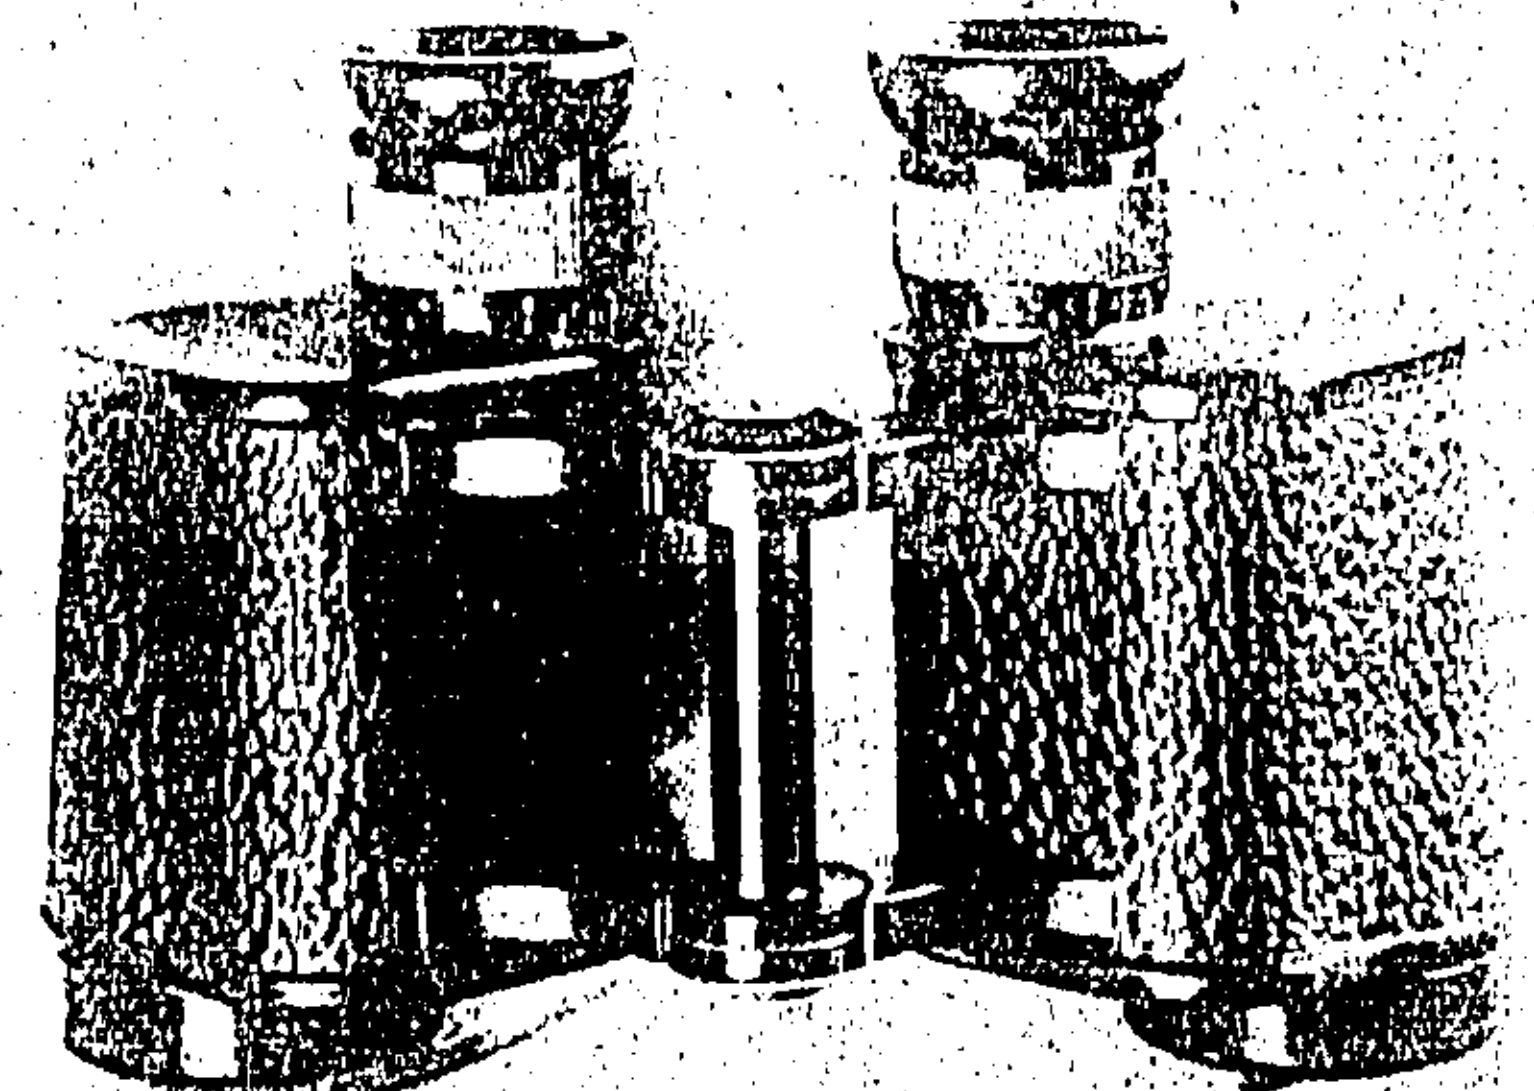

The "sun fair" make-up had been introduced for those with very fine skins, and who wanted to perfect their skins from the strong rays of the sun. This make-up also gave a "healthy look" to the face.

Tell me, doctor... What is a mother to do?

Why, the scratch was so small you could hardly see it: blood-poisoning never entered my mind. After all, children can't sit still all day—though I have asked Freddie not to play in that shed. But, I mean, it might happen to any of us—a cut, a little scratch! Tell me what is one to do?

The smallest cut or scratch is enough for the germs of blood-poisoning to enter. To the germs that cause the havoc, a tiny break in the skin is a wide-open door. There is only one way to prevent their invasion; they must be killed—at once. 'Dettol', the Modern Antiseptic, can be applied immediately; there are directions on every bottle. This thorough killer of germs is gentle and tender on human tissues. Non-poisonous and non-staining to the skin, yet death to germs. 'Dettol' promptly used may save you untold pain and danger.

OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"The Good Earth" (King's Theatre).—A picture of remarkable merit which automatically goes on one's "Must" list. Faithful reproduction of Pearl Buck's famous best-seller, and some vivid portrayals by Luise Rainer, Paul Muni, Walter Connolly and a fine supporting cast.

"Oil For The Lamps Of China" (Queen's Theatre).—This wonderful film has its first showing in Hongkong and will rightly take its place as one of the best cinema entertainments the Colony has enjoyed for a long while. Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Jean Muir give outstanding characterizations.

"Hunted Men" (Alhambra Theatre).—Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle and Lynne Overman in a mixture of drama and sentiment, with sentiment finally triumphing to convert the "bad man" into a hero.

"Everything Is Thunder" (Majestic Theatre).—New contribution from British studios, which, apart from anything else indicates the technical advance in Home productions. Oscar Homolka gives a stirring performance and convincing parts are played by Constance Bennett and Douglas Montgomery.

"This Is My Affair" (Oriental Theatre).—That famous pair—Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor—in a well conceived production, with some typical "He Man" stuff from Victor McLaglen. Good entertainment.

Karuizawa, a small scattered town, is situated 3,080 feet above the sea and has been known for many years as the summer resort where more foreigners go than any other place in Japan. It was discovered in 1886. Situated only three and a half hours from Tokyo, by train, it offers ideal summer temperatures, never exceeding 80 degrees.

Presentation By Members At K.C.C.

Mr. A. E. Silkstone, who leaves for Home to-morrow, was presented with a silver cigarette box and a mahogany wood and teak inlaid chest by his fellow-members at the Kowloon Cricket Club last night.

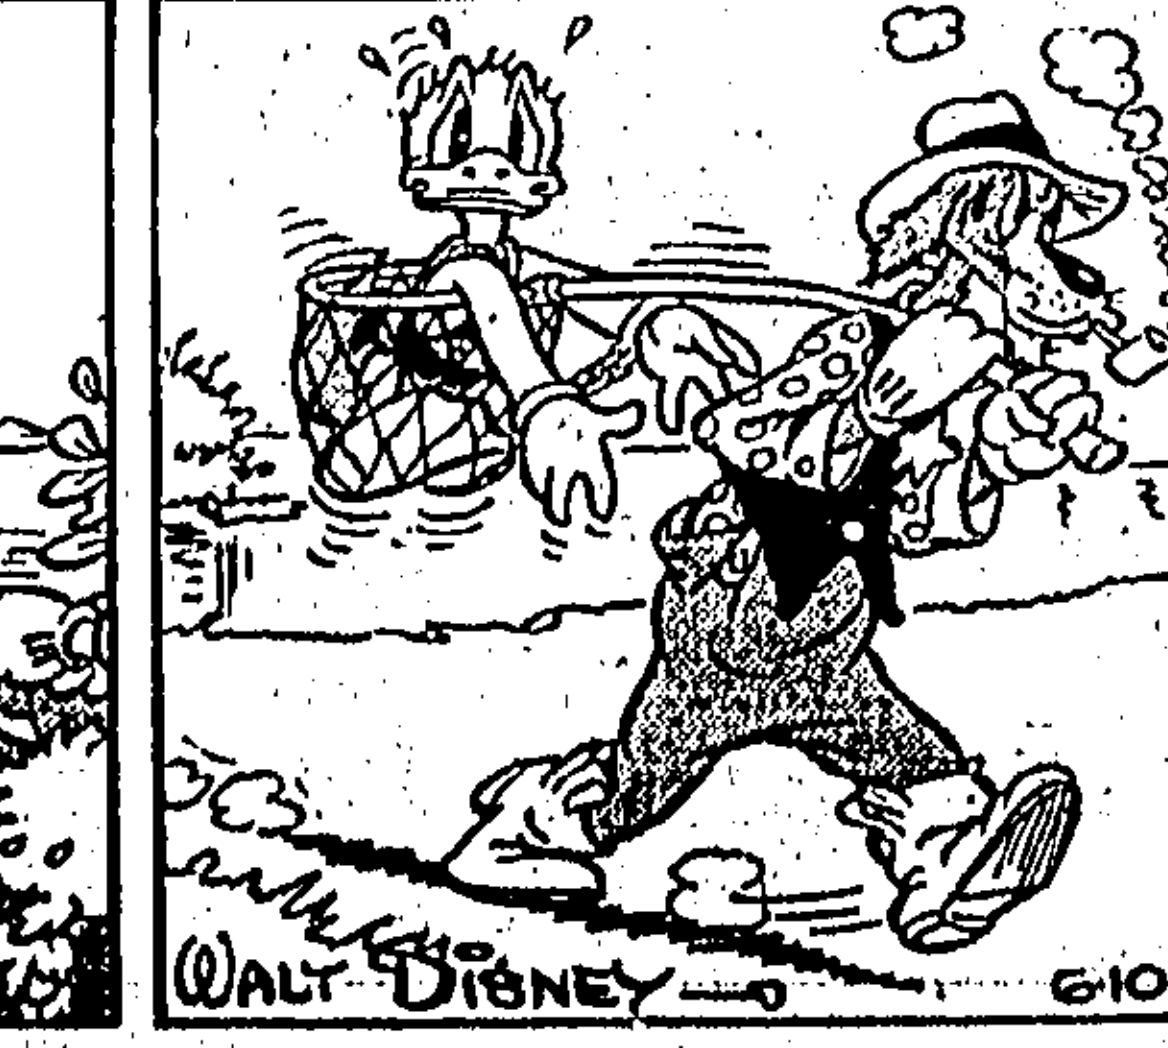

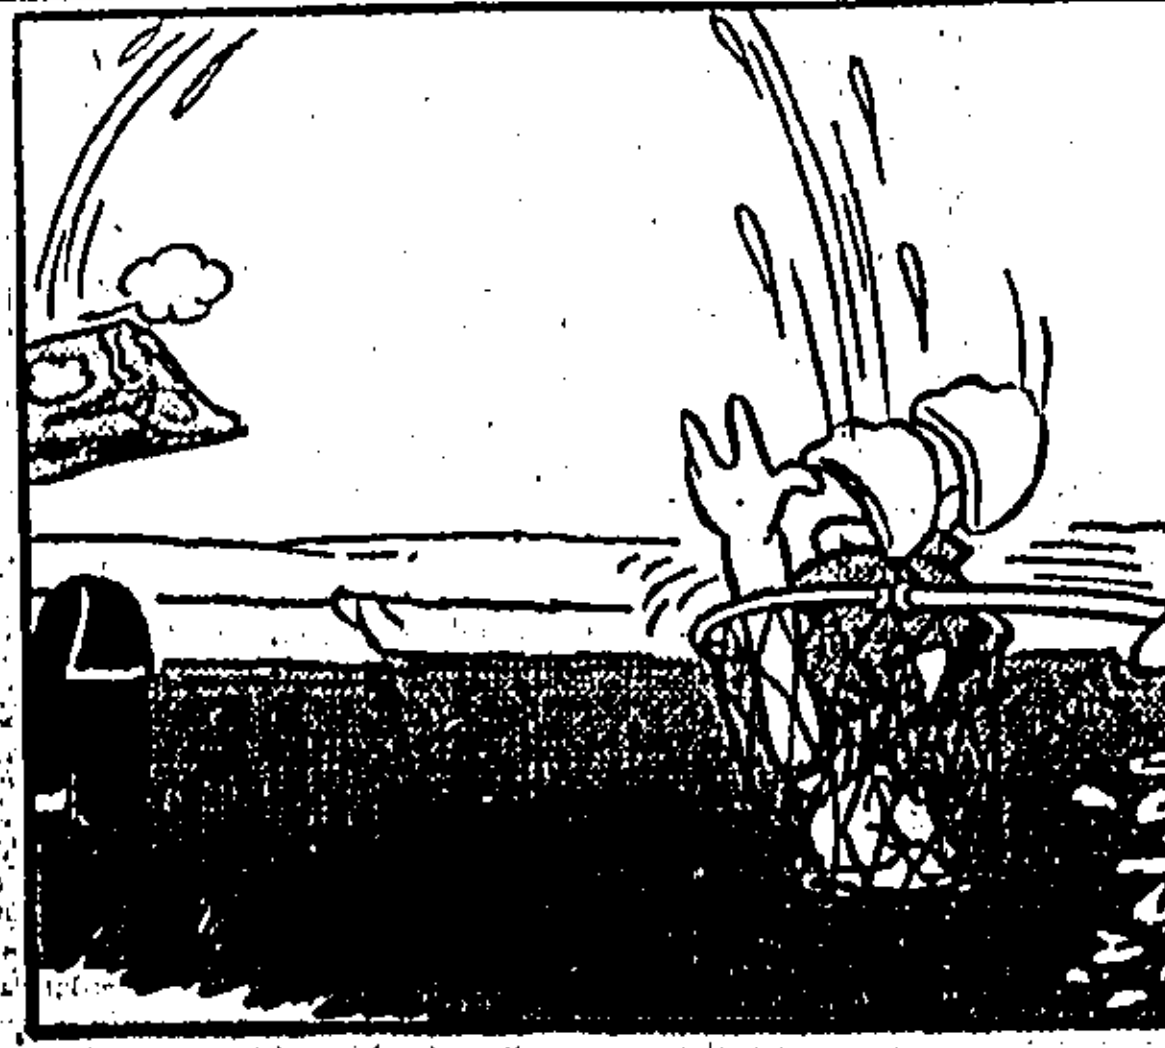

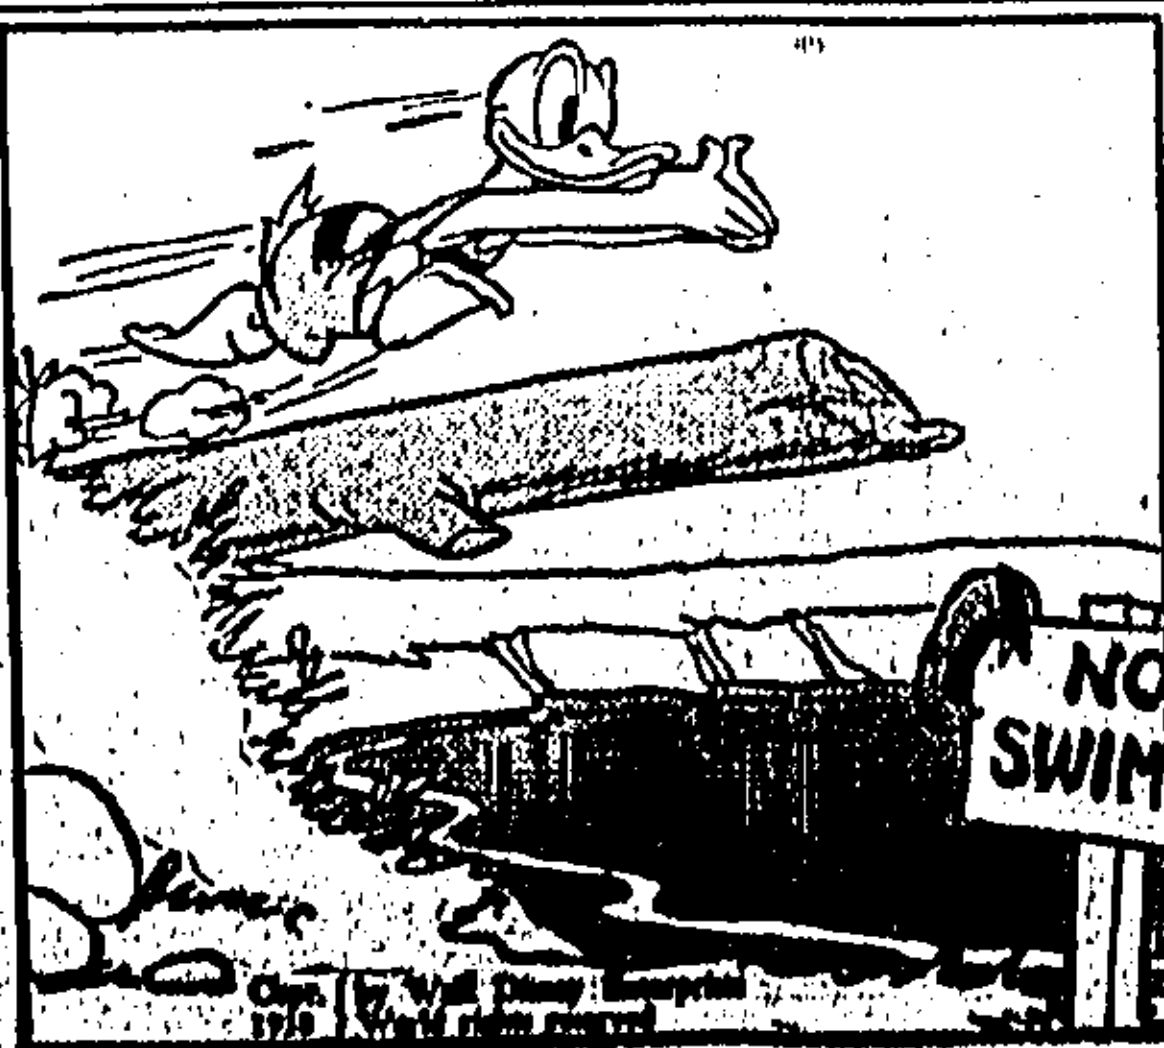

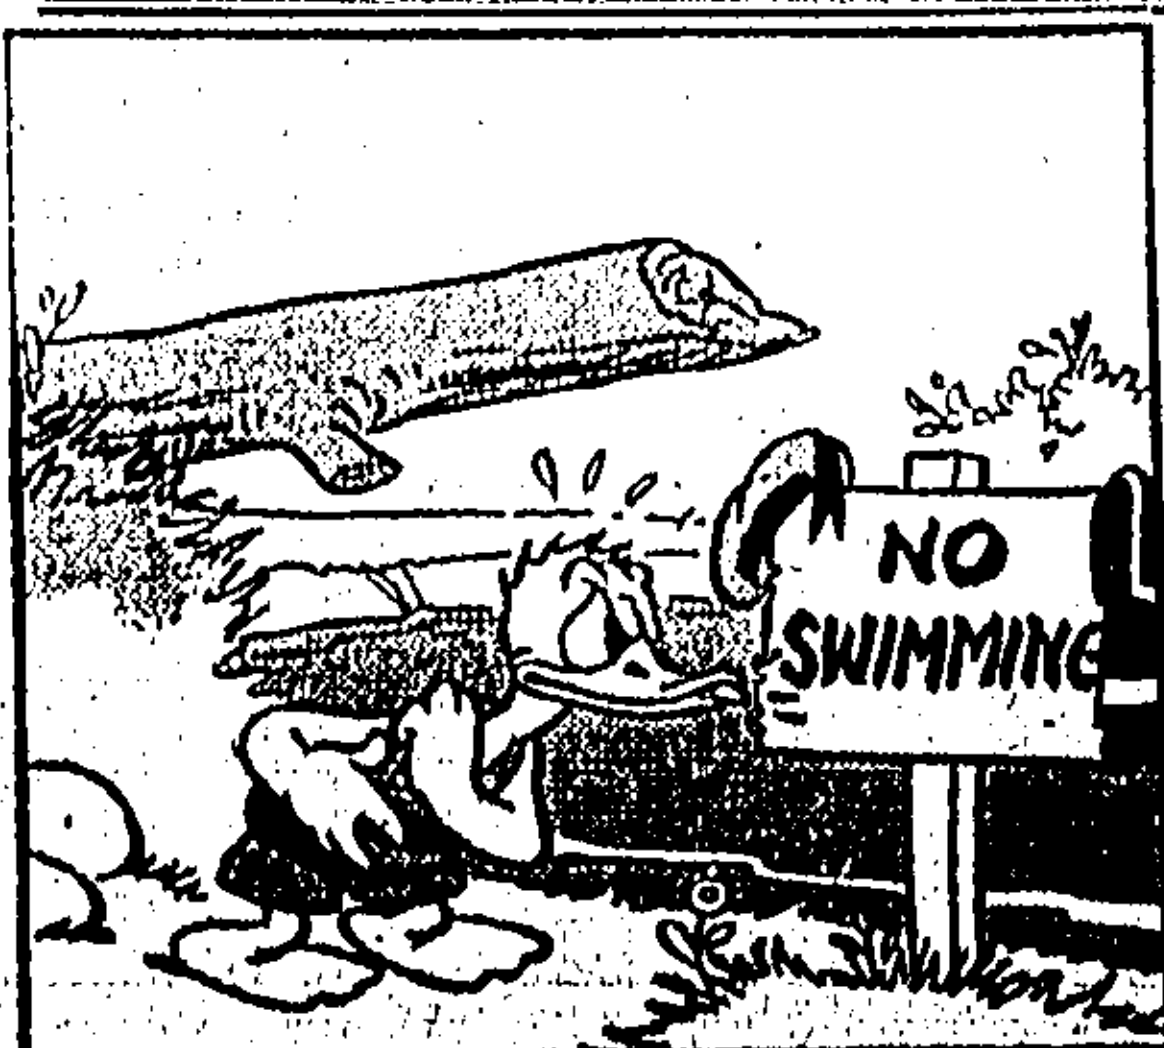

Making the presentation, Mr. Justice Lindall, President, said Mr. Silkstone had been a member since 1907 off and on because of transfers and had been tennis player, cricketer and lawn bowler. He had also served on the Committee.

A gold and platinum wrist watch band was presented to Mrs. Silkstone.

Dominions Have Room For Refugees

Nations Collaborate At Evian

Evian, July 7.
At to-day's meeting of the Refugee Conference, which is seeking homes for thousands of outcasts from their native lands, the Australian delegate dwelt on the difficulties of immigration to Australia.

The Australian Government, however, realising the unhappy plight of German and Austrian Jews, has included them on a pro rata basis comparable with that of any other country.

The Canadian representative alluded to the difficulties of receiving considerable numbers of refugees, though Canada was ready to collaborate in the efforts of the Committee. He urged that countries sending refugees to Canada should contribute to the cost of their transfer, and also suggested collaboration with the League of Nations organization.

The Brazilian delegate said that Brazil had an open door for agriculturists, although they would have to give an undertaking that they would not quit their occupation for four years.

The Belgian delegate spoke of the number of German and other refugees received by Belgium. The Netherlands delegate declared that Holland had already admitted 24,000 German refugees, and suggested that the Netherlands should be regarded as a transmigration country.

The Argentine delegate pointed out that Argentina already had the largest immigrant population of any nation, and declared that the Argentine declined to receive immigrants who objected to being assimilated with Argentine nationals.—Reuter.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNS

Evian, July 7.
The Refugee Conference has adjourned until 10 a.m. on Saturday. Professor Heinrich Neumann, the famous Vienna car specialist, has arrived here at the head of a delegation from the Jewish community of Vienna, with an appeal to the Conference to facilitate the emigration of Jews from Austria.

Professor Neumann told Reuter that the delegation had gone to Evian purely in a private capacity, but with the approval of the Vienna authorities, which promised to assist the emigration of Jews from Austria. A similar delegation has arrived from Berlin, according to the Jewish Telegraph Agency.

A World Jewish Congress delegation is also here and, in a statement issued to-day, expressed appreciation of the British and American delegations' view that Germany and other emigrating countries should permit refugees to take out their capital.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, on behalf of the World Zionist organization, submitted a memorandum to the Conference, drawing attention to the possibilities of Palestine settlement as a solution of the Jewish problem.—Reuter.

BRITAIN UNCERTAIN OF ATTITUDE IN BOMBING QUARREL

London, July 7.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain stated in the House of Commons that he was as yet unable to make a full statement regarding the Insurgent reply to the British Note on the bombing of British ships.

The British Government had found it necessary to ask the Burgos authorities to explain the exact meaning they attach to their disclaimer of their intentions of deliberately attacking British ships, said Mr. Chamberlain.

The British Government has frequently expressed the view that the deliberate bombing and sinking of merchantmen is never admitted by International Law, still less the machine-gunning of their bridges and decks (Cheers).

The Government would give most sympathetic consideration to the practical proposals which the Burgos authorities intimated they would make for the purpose of humanising warfare, the Prime Minister went on.

Referring to the Burgos proposal for the establishment of a "safe" port at Almeria, preliminary examination had revealed difficulties, such as deficiencies in such a plan for discharging vessels, lack of communication with the rest of Spain, and other factors.

The British Government was at present considering the views of British shipping interests on the matter. Replying to Mr. Clement Attlee, the leader of the Opposition, Mr. Chamberlain said that consideration must be borne in mind whether, by the establishment of a special port, the right to bomb other areas would be admitted by the British Government.

Meanwhile, Sir Robert Hodgson, the British Agent in Burgos, is remaining in London for the present.—Reuter.

refugees who remain in Great Britain, the Home Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, said that the occasion for such action would only arise if there were, in Britain, a number of German subjects who could be required to leave without undue hardship to themselves or disadvantage to Britain.

That was not so, said the Home Secretary. Apart from those who had been settled in Britain for many years, many with British-born wives and British-born children, a large proportion of those admitted to Britain were either refugees or persons admitted for special purposes, such as technicians who leave the country when they have fulfilled their mission.—British Wireless.

GUERRILLAS ATTACK TAIYUAN

Sian, July 8.

Confusion reigned in Taiyuan city on July 2 when a strong Chinese guerrilla force suddenly made its appearance in the eastern and southern outskirts.

Taken by complete surprise, the Japanese garrison there suffered many casualties and lost a large quantity of ammunition.

The city gates were closed whilst fighting was going on in the suburbs. The guerrillas retired upon the arrival of a large number of Japanese reinforcements.—Central News.

PLEDGES AID TO CHINA

Hankow, July 8.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek yesterday received a cable from the International Peace Campaign, signed by Lord Cecil, pledging assistance to China.

Another cable from the French branch of the International Peace Campaign expressed "profound admiration for Chinese solidarity and sacrifices."

Mr. Lin Sen, the President of China, received a cable of sympathy from the Friends of China Association in Paris.—Reuter.

INTERESTS

Reports of Franco-Japanese tension, or at least irritation, may or may not have good foundation. It is most difficult to judge. Reputable Chinese sources declare that a Japanese fleet has been sent back to Hainan waters because of the French action of sending police to the Paracels to guard the meteorological station and other equipment there, and the men who are in charge. But such action by Japan presupposes an intention on her part to make some sort of display in Hainan as a reprisal; and it would seem very senseless, for the French are vitally interested in the preservation of Hainan's freedom from Japanese domination, and in that have the backing of Great Britain. The situation in China is too critical to allow Japan to get herself involved elsewhere. Therefore, reports of a Japanese concentration in Hainan waters, and French moves to counteract any possible menace, should be accepted only with the reservation that the Chinese sources whence these stories come may have been misled. On the other hand there is no use blindly refusing to believe that difficulties may develop in this sphere. It has long been suspected that Japan covets Hainan, and the French at Kwongchow and the British at Hongkong and at Singapore have apparently felt some concern lest the expanding power of Tokyo should plant the flag of the Rising Sun on Hainan soil. Not that France or Britain wants the island. They simply want to see it in safe hands. It is conceivable, then, that France might take steps to prevent its occupation, particularly with British support, and the report of French planes massing at Kwongchow and French warships patrolling between that Colony and the Paracels therefore cannot be dismissed as mere fiction. There are signs, too, that Britain does not intend to allow

THE people in England who want to save most for a rainy day are the 1,000,000 workers engaged in building and the other 1,000,000 who are indirectly affected.

At present the weather is fine. Buildings are leaping towards the sun all over the country. Those engaged on the constructional side of the business go out in the morning with reasonable certainty that they will work under God's heaven all day and take home a full pay-packet at the end of the week.

But when the weather breaks—what then?

BEFORE Mr. Hicks tells you about his scheme for insuring building operatives against bad weather—it has been agreed between the unions and the employers and is now the subject of a national ballot—let me give you his expert opinion of what the rainy day means to the builder.

"Rain and snow, frost and fog mean more to us," said Mr. Hicks, "than they do to most folk. To the majority of people they mean just a little discomfort and the warm appeal of the cosy fireside. To the building worker they mean 'standing off.' He is temporarily discharged and thus loses time and money. One can appreciate what the loss discrimination to be shown against her indefinitely in the Yangtse and other Chinese inland waters where the Japanese are pursuing their war of invasion. The answer which the Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs gave to questioners in the House of Commons recently was illuminating. It appears that Britain has seriously considered placing armed ships in the Yangtse for the purpose of convoying merchantmen about their legitimate business. Apparently the only reason why this matter has not been carried further is because merchants engaged in the Far East trade have not yet demanded it. That is the construction which must be placed on Mr. Butler's answer.

As for these questions of trading rights and the very vexed problem of customs levies and the distribution of the revenue from this source, it is necessary that they be approached with the utmost patience by all parties concerned. Particularly is patience necessary with Japan at this juncture, when her attention is very fully taken up with the prosecution of a war and when her own patience is probably not inexhaustible. Britain only wants to be certain that her rights will be safeguarded. China's rights are quite another matter, and do not enter into the Anglo-Japanese equation.

of half a day's pay means in the home. But when it is a question of days, sometimes weeks, of bad weather the worker suffers real privation.

"No wonder that we in the building industry are more afraid of the 'depression over Iceland' than any other worker."

"Now there is fresh hope."

MR. Hicks explained why in answer to a number of questions put to him. Here they are:

"Surely, Mr. Hicks, the building workers and their trade unions have endeavoured to arrive at some solution of this 'wet time' problem?"

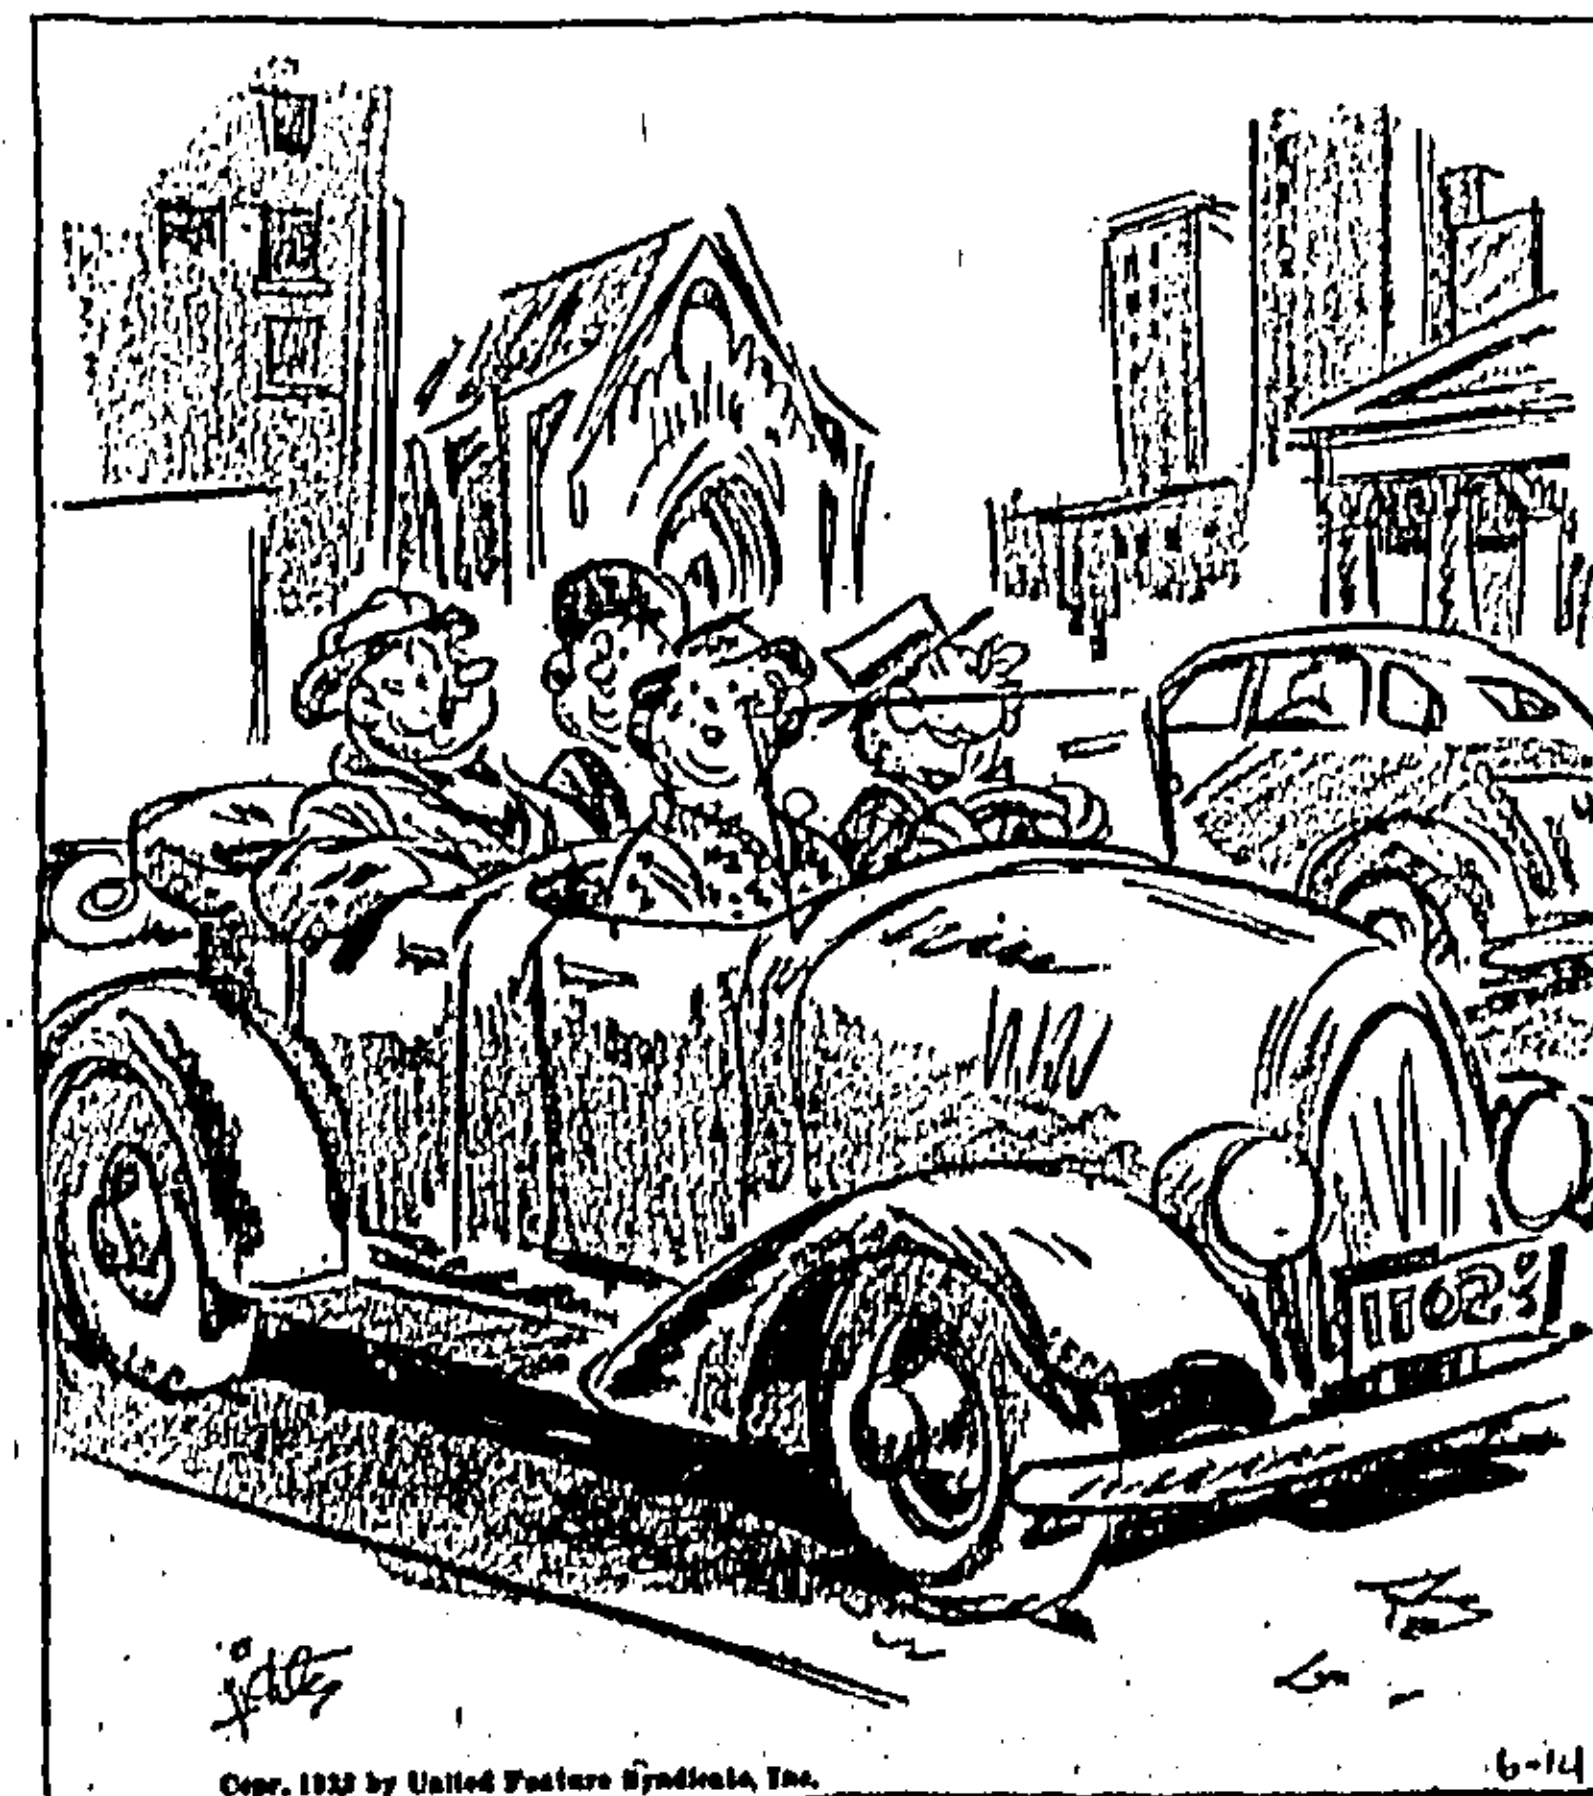

"Certainly we have—from every angle. First during the war. Later, when Lord Addison was Minister of Health we had discussions with the Government. We demanded 100 per cent. payment for time lost through inclement weather. But nothing happened. After the National Building Trades dispute in 1924 we tried to embody a scheme for 'wet time' payment in the terms of settlement, but without effect. Since then we have kept hammering away. Actually, it was agreed in 1926 with the employees to be on a joint contributory basis, and in 1929 the Joint Committee of Employers and Operatives urged the need for a system of national insurance to the Ministry of Labour. We have at last arrived at the present scheme."

"What does it amount to?"

"What it amounts to, in brief, is this. A fund will be created which, it is estimated, will total £2,000,000 annually."

"How?"

GRIN AND BEAR IT By Lichty

"You'd never see the sights in Hongkong if we didn't visit you and show you around!"

RAIN MEANS RUIN
TO THESE MEN

Practically unknown to the general public, half a million building workers in England are now voting on a scheme to end the misery of wages lost through bad weather.

The scheme has already been agreed between the employers and the union leaders. The men are giving their view through a national ballot, but the issue is not in doubt.

"By contributions. Towards the fund the employers will contribute half, the building workers the other half. The craftsman will pay 6d., the labourer 4d., and the apprentice or junior 2½d. weekly. The employer will contribute an equal amount to that contributed by each craftsman, labourer or junior, as the case may be. In short, the workers will pay about £1,000,000 annually, the employers a similar sum."

"How will the scheme work?"

"The scheme will be national in scope and apply to the entire building industry, trade unionist and non-unionist alike."

"How will those who have lost time make the fact known? How will the records be kept?"

"The responsibility will be upon the employers to keep proper records of the time lost by their workers."

"How will those who have lost time be paid?"

"They will be paid by the employers. They will receive the money at the same time as they receive their wages."

"To what extent will they be paid for lost time? What will be the rate of benefit?"

"Obviously, if the scheme is to be a workable one, it is only reasonable to pay somewhat less than the amount which would be earned by working. That is essential to check 'knocking off' for frivolous reasons."

"It is proposed, therefore, that the rate of benefit for lost time through bad weather shall be 9d. per hour for craftsmen, 7d. per hour for labourers and 4d. for youths between 16 and 21."

"What guarantee have the workers that their interests will be safeguarded?"

"On each job a steward will be elected either by the workers themselves or by the representatives of the trade unions affiliated to or under the auspices of the National Federation of Building Trades Operatives."

Mr. Hicks added that workers would not be able to draw lost time benefit and unemployment insurance benefit at the same time.

His other points must be summarised for lack of space.

Let me end this interview with Mr. Hicks calling all building workers. Here he is.

"I regard this scheme as the greatest proposal for reform ever made in the building industry. To many an old bricklayer or labourer the very idea of being paid 60 per cent. lost time will seem like an inspiration from on high. The scheme will be, in my opinion, the first big step in the direction of permanency of employment in the building industry. It will provide us with the basis for decentralising the industry and moving towards the guaranteed week."

Good luck, Mr. Hicks!

REDUCTION OF

London, July 7.

The International Sugar Council, which met in London on Tuesday to consider the working of the Sugar Agreement, and to hold preliminary discussions regarding its policy for the second sugar quota year, which opens on September 1, is now considering the estimate of market requirements made by its statistical committee.

Figures have not yet been published, but a meeting of the Council in May estimated that the market requirements would be 3,050,000 metric tons, compared with the estimate of 3,250,000 metric tons made on March 26.

It is understood that the question of a further reduction of the quota has not yet been discussed.—Reuter.

RADIO DIFFUSION
A POSSIBILITY

That Government may introduce a Radio Diffusion system—a form of wired wireless by which radio broadcasts are received over telephone or power circuits—is indicated by the fact that the sum of $5,000 is still included in the estimates for the purchase of the necessary equipment.

The vote was originally included in the 1937 estimate, but in the Draft Appropriation Account, tabled in Legislative Council this afternoon, the statement is made that the amount is being held in abeyance pending Government's final decision on the scheme.

The vote for $5,000 has, however, been reduced to $4,772 by an unexplained expenditure last year in connection with the scheme.

It is recalled that a Radio Diffusion scheme was introduced to Hongkong by the Telephone Company three years ago, but remained in existence only a few months, owing to lack of support from the public.

Chinese Estimate 1,355 Japanese Planes Lost

Chinese Now Admit Hukow Captured

Hankow, July 8.

No fewer than 570 Japanese war planes have been destroyed by the Chinese air force and anti-aircraft batteries during one year of hostilities, declared Colonel Mao Pang-chu, Chief of Aerial Operations in the Chinese Air Force to-day.

Colonel Mao added: "A total of 243 Japanese aircraft have actually been shot down in combat in the air and 138 have been destroyed on the ground by Chinese bombing operations. Chinese anti-aircraft batteries have shot down 163. The remaining 26 shot down have not been located.

"The aircraft destroyed include 64 heavy bombers, 90 light bombers, 54 pursuit planes, 13 scouting planes, 19 seaplanes and 320 unidentified.

"The losses due to accident probably totalled 785 machines, thus bringing the number of Japanese aircraft lost during the year to the vast total of 1,355. The number of officers in the Japanese air force to lose their lives during the first year of war probably totals 1,100."—Reuter Special.

Admit Hukow's Capture

Hankow, July 8. The Central Government authorities now admit the loss of Hukow, which was occupied by the Japanese on Tuesday morning.—United Press.

Details of Attack

Hankow, July 8. When the Japanese troops landed at Hukow on Tuesday, Chinese reports state, another column of troops simultaneously advanced on the South bank of the Yangtze River, reaching a point about eight miles east of Hukow.

"The Japanese succeeded in penetrating the Chinese positions, it is admitted. After the arrival of reinforcements on Wednesday morning, the Chinese counter-attacked, and allegedly occupied Lungtoushan, east of Hukow, and also Mayinchiao, to the south-east of the city.—Reuter.

Chinese Counter-Attack

Nanchang, July 8. Chinese troops are counter-attacking the Japanese in the Hukow area with favourable results. It is now ascertained that the Japanese broke through the Chinese artillery positions there in the afternoon of July 5. Lungtoushan, a hill commanding a strategic position about ten kilometres east of Hukow, was recaptured by the Chinese yesterday morning. About 2,000 Japanese were killed in this engagement.

Following the recapture of this height, the retreat of the Japanese in the Hukow area has been cut. Several villages in the vicinity, including Changtun, Tsintun and Totsun, were also recaptured. Japanese troops rushed from Matang to reinforce their comrades in the Hukow area but were beaten back.—Central News.

Italians Fire On French Territory

Rome, July 7. The French Charge d'Affaires in Rome has protested to the Foreign Office regarding an alleged incident involving two French tourists. The Frenchmen accidentally crossed the frontier into Italian territory, but as soon as they realised their mistake they returned to French soil. Nevertheless, the Italian frontier guards fired on while they were in French territory. One of the men was seriously wounded.—Reuter.

NEW TYPE OF FORD

Washington, July 7. The U.S. Patent Office has granted Henry Ford a patent for a new type of motor-car, which will have the famous V-8 Ford engine in the rear instead of in the front of the vehicle.—United Press.

AMERICAN MARINES DRIVE OUT JAPANESE

Gendarmes Evicted From Shanghai Patrol Area

Shanghai, July 8. U.S. Marines evicted two lorries filled with Japanese gendarmes, including plain-clothes men, when they attempted to search a Chinese in the American sector this morning.

The lorries were escorted across the Yu Yu Ching Road boundary, where the Japanese parked for half-an-hour, apparently undecided as to what to do. Afterwards the lorries returned to Hongkow.

Several bridges across Sochow Creek have been re-opened, but the American defence sector is still closed.—United Press.

Not Wanted In Japan

Young Irishman In Custody Two Weeks

Mr. Frederick "Pat" O'Hara, the young Irishman who aroused the suspicions of the Japanese Government to such an extent that he was requested to leave the country, arrived in Hongkong this morning on the Ranchor on his way back to England.

Mr. O'Hara would not comment on his experiences in Japan and merely said, "I'm afraid I have nothing to say."

Mr. O'Hara was the resident secretary in Japan of the Liverpool and London Globe Insurance Company. By filming scenery in the fortified zone in the vicinity of Yokohama Mr. O'Hara violated the law and was fined. Before being fined, however, he was held in custody for two weeks on a charge of violating the Military and Naval Secrets Protection Law, and his correspondence, road maps, films and photographic apparatus were seized.

Following his conviction and fine Mr. O'Hara was notified his presence in Japan was undesirable and he is now on his way back to England.

Skirmishes Near Peiping

Railway Cut North Of Lukouchiao

Peiping, July 7. The anniversary of the Lukouchiao incident passed quietly in Peiping, the only local disturbance being the cutting of the Peiping-Mentoukou Railway near Sanchiao, eight miles north of Lukouchiao, by Chinese guerrillas.

There were a few isolated skirmishes between guerrillas and Japanese in the vicinity of Peiping. Japanese and Chinese police cleared the streets of Peiping at 7.30 a.m. when General Terauchi, his Staff, Japanese Embassy officials and a delegation of Provisional Government officials drove to the forbidden city of Taimiao, where a special ceremony in memory of Japan's war dead was held.

Japanese shops in Peiping were all closed, the entire Japanese population participating in various meetings throughout the city. Japanese reservists marched to Lukouchiao, where a small monument marking the spot of the "incident" was unveiled.—United Press.

Czechs' Big Problem Not Yet Settled

Prague, July 7. Dr. Milan Hodza and the Sudeten-German representatives to-day resumed negotiations, suspended during the Sokol festivities, concerning the drafting of a National Pact. Efforts are being made to reach a compromise on eight points submitted by Herr Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten leader, but it is doubtful whether the draft will be ready for submission to the Parliamentary Committee at the end of this week, as was hoped.—Reuter.

THREE MONTHS HARD LABOUR

Three months' hard labour was imposed on Cheung Yin-nan, 19, unemployed, by Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith at the Central Magistracy this morning for the theft of an earring from No. 540, 47, married woman, at Dea Young Road Central, yesterday.

FRANCO TO STAND ALONE

Won't Tolerate Domination By Foreign Power

London, July 8. General Franco has definitely assured Great Britain that he will not tolerate foreign intervention or domination in Spain in the event of an insurgent victory.

It is stated in unimpeachable quarters that this assurance has been conveyed to Mr. Neville Chamberlain by the British Agent in Burgos, Sir Robert Hodgson, and it is believed that Sir Robert assured the Prime Minister that the majority of General Franco's followers supported these sentiments.—Reuter.

Yelling Baby Aids Mother To Escape

There were over a dozen European policemen and about two score Chinese at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning—all specialists in crime. Yet a young woman prisoner, accused of being in possession of a gallon and a half of illicit spirits, walked out of the building and escaped without trouble.

Her discontented and extremely vociferous baby was responsible. While she was standing next to the prisoners' dock, (women with babies are not put inside) waiting for her case to be brought up, the child she was carrying in her arms suddenly began to cry. The cries grew louder and became shrieks—shrieks which upset the dignity of the court and interfered with the progress of justice. Nothing could quiet the baby, and eventually the woman, who was thought to be on bail, was sent out of court and told to wait outside.

Still the frenzied shrieks could be heard, and the woman was harried from one place to another. Finally she was chased downstairs, and on seeing the exit in front of her, she decided it would be best if she left. She has not yet been traced.

REMARQUE NO LONGER GERMAN

Berlin, July 7. Herr Erich Remarque, the famous author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," has been deprived of German citizenship.

His name was included in a list of 21 Germans deprived of citizenship rights, published in the official Reich Gazette this morning. Remarque, who appears in the list as Erich Paul Remarque, gained fame in 1928 when his war book was published and almost immediately translated into practically every language.

Remarque is now living in Ronco in Switzerland, where he owns an estate.—Trans-Ocean.

ADVANCES ON EXCHANGE

London, July 7. On the Stock Exchange to-day gilt-edged bonds again led the market.

Industrials made a good showing and Kaffirs advanced despite some late irregularity. Oils were firm. Internationals were irregular early but improved after the Wall Street opening.

On the Foreign Exchange American dollars were firmer, partly as a result of purchases of American stocks, partly due to buying based on rumours that the dollar may be stabilised at the old parity.

COLONY COOLER

Hongkong was a little cooler yesterday, the maximum temperature being 88 degrees, and the minimum last night, 70. At 10 o'clock this morning the temperature was 85 and humidity was 78 per cent.

Again only a fraction of an inch of rain fell over 24 hours, the total for the year being 29.74 inches as compared with an average of 41.57 inches.

The Royal Observatory weather report, issued this morning, stated that a weak anti-cyclone area extends from Formosa to the Bonin Islands. The depression in the China Sea has deepened; it is situated about 150 miles to the east of Tournon, moving north-west.

Local forecast is:—South-east winds, moderate to fresh; cloudy, showery.

THE DETAILED SCORES

Sandwich, July 7.

Only 37 competitors out of 120 qualified for the final stages of the British open golf championship here to-day. The qualifying score was 148 for 36 holes, and among prominent players who failed to return this, or a better score, were James Bruen, the 17 year-old Walker Cupper, Eddie Whitcombe, who was one of the leaders in the early qualifying rounds, Arthur Havers and James Braid.

J. J. Busson, Richard Burton of Sale and W. Cox led the field at the close of to-day's play, each returning an aggregate of 140 for the two rounds.

Cotton's score was not included in the early returns.

Records were beaten and equalled during the day. Brews, in shooting a 70 to aggregate 146, did the home-ward nine holes in 33 strokes which is a record for the championship links.

Cyril Tolley, former British amateur champion and Walker Cup player had a 68 to total 145 and to equal the amateur record for the course.

TEST OUTLOOK IS GLOOMY

Lots Of Rain At Manchester Affect Wicket

Manchester, July 7. The outlook for the Third Test is gloomy. It has rained intermittently for several days and it rained all night long on Wednesday and again before the forenoon to-day.

These downpours prevented the English and Australian players from practising at the nets.

The Old Trafford wicket is a natural wicket and has not been "doped" with mud for four years. It is therefore certain to be very soft. In accordance with the rules the wicket will be covered at 11.30 in the morning, until the start. Police will guard the wicket during the night.

The majority of the tickets have been sold, and the authorities hope that weather permitting, the crowd will be in the region of 40,000.—Reuter.

Rain Stops County Cricket Games

London, July 7. Rain affected several of the county cricket matches in England to-day, and prevented play in the following games:

Derbyshire v. Sussex
Gloucestershire v. Kent
Hampshire v. Middlesex
Warwickshire v. Sussex
Worcestershire v. Yorkshire
Close of play scores in the other matches were:
Northants 119 and 147, Lancashire 116 and 20 for 0
Notts 452 for 9 declared against Leicestershire.—Reuter Bulletin.

Dear Tommy Farr—

I SHALL be at Southampton to meet and greet you, and to hear from your own lips an explanation of your surprising defeats at the hands of the two boxing veterans, Jim Braddock and Max Baer.

Those shocks have surely shaken your confidence. They did mine.

People—you know what gossip means—are saying that you are back here for a few weeks because neither America's fight dictator, "Uncle Mike" Jacobs, nor its hard-boiled fight-loving public, is now interested in your future!

Three fights and three defeats don't help bally-hoo. You know this as well as I do. Neither in America nor Britain.

I know there were doubts about the correctness of the official decision when you were declared the loser against 33-year-old Braddock.

As you know, Jim was pugilism's "Cinderella Man" even when he was matched with fleshy Max Baer for the world heavyweight title three years ago.

Yet after the punishment Joe Louis inflicted upon "old man" Braddock before stopping him in eight rounds, I was confident you had the speed, stamina, ability—and Youth—to account for Steve-dore Jim.

I want to turn back a few leaves of the calendar. When I met you on the Queen Mary after you had temporarily paralysed American boxing writers by lasting 15 rounds with "Brown Bomber" Louis, you confided in me that you were sure of winning the world title.

It doesn't look that way now, Tommy, does it? Nothing less than a miracle will put you on the championship track again. What is the more puzzling to me was Baer's decisive victory.

YOU had made him appear a good "has been" with your convincing win over him in London during the April of 1937. Yet in the ring at Madison Square Garden, New York, Baer did something that Louis failed to do—sent you crashing to the canvas; not once, but three times!

I'm not forgetting that he couldn't keep you down for the full count. None of your opponents has been able to do that. Which reminds me: British boxing prestige—there is still some left—is justly proud that you showed those 100 per cent. American sports writers that you were not just another British horizontal heavyweight.

Yes, I am pleased you will be in Britain again. Mellowed, I feel sure, after the rebuffs and, not infrequently, adverse criticism that has greeted you in America. I believe that I know the real reason for your return. You are anxious to fight once more in London... the city that gave you your first big chance.

You want a return, I understand, with the burly German, Walter Neusel, whom you sensationally defeated in three rounds last June.

I don't know whether this match will make much of an appeal to the cash customers of the ring. For the actual result does not mean a thing.

Then there is another important situation that is sure to affect you. You will be asked to explain to those august legislators, the stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control, your personal ideas with regard to the defence of your two titles—the British and Empire crowns.

You will know as soon as you arrive—if you already haven't

from

James Butler

"Three fights and three defeats don't help..."

defeated in three rounds last June.

I don't know whether this match will make much of an appeal to the cash customers of the ring. For the actual result does not mean a thing.

Then there is another important situation that is sure to affect you. You will be asked to explain to those august legislators, the stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control, your personal ideas with regard to the defence of your two titles—the British and Empire crowns.

You will know as soon as you arrive—if you already haven't the information—that Ben Foord, the South African whom you defeated for those two titles, is matched to oppose Eddie Phillips, in what is known as the final eliminatory championship eliminator.

This does not sound very exciting or alluring, does it? For whoever is victor I must confess that I am not acquainted with any promoter at the moment who will offer several thousand pounds for the championship proper contest.

I may be wrong or misinformed, but I seriously doubt whether there is now lots of money in London for heavyweight matches. There was last year. You can give first-hand evidence confirming my statement.

That was before you sailed away to meet Joe Louis, after you had turned down an offer of some £5,000 and a few extras to meet the Nazi boxer, Schmeling, at the White City.

AS I have written earlier in this letter, dear Tommy, three successive defeats in New York haven't increased your drawing powers at the box office: the only genuine register of any boxer's financial valuations.

Had you beaten either Braddock or Baer, it wouldn't have been too bad. You see, it is the general opinion—and public opinion is usually fairly correct—that you have dropped back into the place you occupied before you tackled Louis.

Still, I must admit that you are still the one drawing card in the British heavyweight division. I will go farther, and add that if you decide to have a fight in the immediate future, either in Cardiff or Swansea, the largest football grounds available would not be big enough to accommodate the thousands of your countrymen who still have faith in your ability and who want to see you in the ring in your native Wales.

The purse money would not be fantastic. You have not to be told why. You yourself have known what it is to feel hungry in the Rhondda mining villages. Do you remember the many quiet talks we had in a small room in Fleet-street, when you longed for the nights when you might be fighting for a £100 purse?

DO you remember how you said that often your only meal before a fight in Wales was one kipper? Since then you have reached stardom—mainly through your dogged ways, and, shall I say it?—super-confidence.

You have tasted the luxury that is associated with a successful international boxer. And, I am assured, have saved a substantial fortune.

I am glad, and hope that you will have it behind you when the inevitable time arrives when you must destroy your fighting kit as being of no further use to you. That time may not be so far off as you may dream at the moment. For unless new heavyweight talent is quickly discovered and developed, I can tell you that public interest in your class will evaporate.

There is no room in the sport for the veterans. That understanding individual, the Man in the Street, demands action, destructive punching, and Youthful Endeavour if he is to continue his patronage.

RECENT affairs between various heavyweights have not contributed to an increase in enthusiasm. You can restore this fading interest if you can reproduce that dynamic form you so brightly displayed when battling against Baer and Neusel, at Harringay; Joe Louis, in New York.

If you can do this, then there will be no need for you to return to America seeking matches or longing for a fight with the winner of the Louis-Schmeling world championship battle.

You had better destroy this pipe dream, Tommy.

Because if Louis retains his title—notwithstanding that the Nazi knocked him cold in twelve rounds on June 19, 1936—the American public will prefer Max Baer to you... for they have longer memories than we have.

BRADMAN IS IN REVOLT

THREATENS TO STOP PLAYING

London, July 7.

Don Bradman, illustrious Australian Test cricketer and captain of the present team now touring England, is in revolt.

According to a Reuter Special message, Bradman is at loggerheads with the Australian Cricket Board of Control, which refused his application to waive the rules to enable Mrs. Bradman to visit him in England.

The Test cricketers' contracts forbid players contact with their relatives during the tour.

It is understood that Bradman threatens to refuse to participate in future tours unless the "No Wives" rule is removed.

Neither Bradman, nor Mrs. Bradman will comment on the situation, but the Australian newspapers are giving headlines to the subject.

The Sydney Sun, dealing with the question, refers to "Our sporting dictators."

Islington Corinthians Count Cost

Lose £750 On World Football Tour

Islington Corinthians, who on the World's tour, travelled 35,000 miles to play ninety-five matches in China, Japan, Canada, India, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, Egypt, the Philippines and the U.S.A., have lost £750 on the trip. At the seventeen amateur League team players won sixty-eight of the matches, lost only eight, and drew nineteen, they fully deserved the congratulations of the F.A. President, Mr. W. Rickford, when he met them at Southampton, and said "You have carried Association football round the world and we are proud of you."

As throughout the tour, the Islington Corinthians performed excellent missionary work, it is expected the F.A. will make grant towards the club's loss. One player, J. Sherwood, the top scorer, has now signed professional forms for Reading; thirteen of the others have returned to their usual work, but three, unfortunately, find themselves out of employment.

"NEUTRAL" STATES CANNOT ESCAPE ARMS RACE

The so-called "neutral" states that have so far managed to remain aloof from the arms race are warned, in the March issue of the International Labour Review, published by the I.L.O., that it will be impossible for them to escape its aftermath. The warning is contained in the concluding article by British economist A. J. S. Baxter, on the economic effects of rearmament.

"The trend towards greater national self-sufficiency," he says, "and the greater riskiness of economic relations characteristic of a rearming world may suggest that, as international trade and capital movements become less important, 'neutral' countries that do not desire, or are not obliged, to enter the armaments race will escape the effects of it, and that if and when the boom collapses only the countries immediately concerned will suffer."

Baxter says that though there may be some evidence to support this view, it is doubtful whether even in the present restricted state of international trade and capital movements, national isolation from booms and slumps is very secure anywhere. "Pessimistic views about the economic future will pass national frontiers unchecked, to influence business men's decisions on both sides. More important, over-investment in any part of the world's economic system will cause the other parts to become adapted to it, so long as there is any international trade at all. It is easy to see for instance, that the American steel industry may be 'overbuilt' in consequence of orders connected directly or indirectly with European rearmament; but there may be less obvious cases of other industries whose increased exports to Europe set free resources there for armaments making. Thus expansions and contractions in all international trading countries are linked, whatever the exchange system. Isolation from the international repercussions of rearmament or disarmament is an illusion."

ARMAMENTS TRUCE NEEDED

The chief danger ahead, Baxter thinks, is that of a top-heavy structure of production in which the distribution of the stream of real resources between the capital goods industries and the consumption goods industries will fail to correspond to the distribution of the stream of money income between saving and spending. Though in some cases readjustment may be indefinitely postponed, most countries will have to deal with the inevitable recession when it comes.

Baxter continues, "The most hopeful beginning and the most hopeful guarantee for the success of a recovery policy, anywhere would be an effective armaments truce or armaments convention containing economic clauses embodying international agreement." The agreement would aim at three main results: firstly, the liberation and expansion of international trade in order to facilitate the diversion of war plant to peace-time production; secondly, a plain statement of national policy by the principal economic countries; thirdly, an exchange of information between them.

"The alternatives," he concludes "to an armaments truce and some international economic understanding such as is here suggested are plain. Either rearmament will have its natural consequence in a world war precipitated perhaps by the economic breakdown of one of the competitors, or the burden of armaments expenditure will become so intolerable in the poorer countries as to produce widespread hardship with incalculable political consequences. It is certain that the economic problems that would be raised by a return to international common sense in this matter are not insoluble, given the very modest degree of co-operation which would be assured by an armaments truce itself.—United Press.

Big Problem In Military Preparations

The problem of how to protect from aerial bombardment one of the largest and most important of German factories, the Leuna Ammonia Works, covering four square miles, is being seriously studied by the authorities.

First erected in 1916 to produce synthetic nitrogen out of the air by the Haber-Bosch process, the Leuna Works have now expanded to one of the largest chemical plants in the world, using the resources of soft coal in the Saale River basin.

Like every chemical factory, the Leuna Works are a maze of open-air pipe-lines, distilleries and factory buildings quite impossible to camouflage. A primary reason for choosing in 1916 the present site of the factory was its distance from the frontier, writes the Sunday Times Berlin correspondent.

DEFENCE OF LEUNA

Now matters have changed. The Leuna Works can be reached by modern bombers from the Czechoslovakia border within twenty minutes. Since Leuna is the heart of Germany's newly created synthetic products industry, the problem of defending the works is an important chapter in Germany's military preparations.

Questioned on what plans had been made to defend the Leuna factories in case of war, the directors of the plants stated:

"All we can do is to build our plants in such a way that, if bombs should fall on any part of them, the damaged department can be taken out of production and a substitute can increase its output, so that production in other parts of the plant will not be held up. The main job, of course, is up to the Air Force, whose duty it is to see that enemy planes never reach the factory."

The directors insisted that no anti-aircraft guns were in position near the plant, but they admitted that they would be rushed to the neighbourhood should war break out.

In the days before the Nazis assumed power the German Army, which, under the Treaty of Versailles, was forbidden heavy artillery, prepared well-entrenched outposts for the guns they hoped to own some day. It must be assumed that since those days preparations have advanced.

It is true, German experts declare, that Germany is still short of divisional artillery; but Leipzig is one of the main centres of the German motorised army, and the Leuna Works, with its numerous plants established in the neighbourhood, would certainly be protected with anti-aircraft guns a few hours after mobilisation.

SALTPETRE AND ALCOHOL

The plant is really a combination of several factories. Its main products are synthetic saltpetre, synthetic petrol and lubricating oils. They are made from bituminous coal, taken from the pits in Central Germany. In addition, artificial fertilisers are produced. They are derived from the synthetic saltpetre for the production of which the factory was originally built.

In 1916, when Germany was in desperate need of saltpetre for ammunition, Fritz Haber and Carl Bosch discovered a method of producing nitrogen and saltpetre from the air. Then, when saltpetre was no longer needed for the manufacture of explosives, chemists turned it into artificial fertilisers, which play an important part in Germany's fight for self-sufficiency.

In 1923 the Leuna Works started producing synthetic alcohols, which are used chiefly in internal combustion engines.

To-day they produce 370,000 tons of petrol annually, which, added to the benzene produced in other German plants, provides Germany with a total of 1,000,000 tons annually, or about half of her present needs.

Boy Of Seventeen Jumps 6,000 Ft.

Seventeen-year-old Albert Gourd, of Eastern-street, Bristol, had always wanted to do a parachute drop.

So he did it, from 6,000ft. over the Clifton Suspension Bridge, Bristol.

HE landed on the roof of a house in Woodland-road, Bristol, and there remained hanging until rescued by means of a ladder.

Gourd, who is a member of the R.A.F. Reserve at Filton, said he had only been up once before, and had told his friends that he would do a jump.

"They kept chipping me," he said, "so I did it. I asked the R.A.F. if I could jump, but they refused."

"I went up this evening as an air gunner. The pilot did not know what I intended to do."

Risked Life To Hang A Dummy

Undergraduates who looked out of their windows at Keble College, Oxford, were shocked to see what appeared to be a body hanging by about seven feet of rope from a gargoyle on a lofty tower above the quadrangle.

On investigation it was found that the "body" was a dummy. Some unknown climber had achieved a dangerous feat in which one false step would have led to real tragedy.

There have been other climbing escapades at Keble, and the college has been put to great expense repairing damage done by early-morning "mountaineers."

Godiva A Doubtful Starter

There may, after all, be on Lady Godiva in "nude" fleshings, mounted on a white charger, when Teddington, Middlesex, carnival takes place next month.

On the eve of choosing the girl to fill the role from the 14 applicants, the Fete Committee is discussing whether, after all, such a figure is "quite nice."

Last-minute qualms have been roused by a storm of protest by residents.

People who have helped with the carnival in previous years have refused to help this year unless Lady Godiva is withdrawn from the procession.

Mr. Ernest Green, retired business man, of Connaught Road, Teddington, has written in protest:

"Is our memorial hospital and health centre to be thus used for debasing the young womanhood and manhood of Teddington under the guise of charity?"

What prospectors describe as a rich gold strike has been made in the Franklin River area in the west of Vancouver Island.

There has been a rush of engineers and prospectors to the spot, cables the Sunday Dispatch Vancouver correspondent.

The Dominion Government report describes the area as possessing "a remarkable mineralised mass, justifying thorough prospecting."

Grounds For Spanking

VISALIA, Cal.

Chief of Police Harold Hicks proved himself a super G-man when a frightened citizen rushed in with a postal card demanding $450 "or else." After an intensive study of the card he asked the man if by any chance he had a young son who read detective stories. He had.

Britain Builds Liner In Record Period

Birkenhead.

What is believed to be a record in shipbuilding will be established on July 28 when the Cunard White Star liner Mauretania, 33,000 tons gross, constructed for the London-New York service, is launched from the Cammell Laird yard here, writes Hector C. Bywater in the Daily Telegraph.

This vessel, the largest intermediate liner so far built in this country and the greatest ship ever constructed in England, was laid down on May 24, 1937.

Since then about 17,000 tons of steel have been worked into her structure. The hull, with its seven decks, is complete, and the plating of the upper part of the liner, comprising the promenade, sun and sports decks, is well advanced.

To bring a ship of this size to the launching stage in 14 months is an astonishing feat, the more so as Cammell Laird is simultaneously building about 15 other vessels, including the 35,000-ton battleship Prince of Wales.

When ready for sea next spring the Mauretania will displace about 37,000 tons. Her maiden voyage will coincide with the New York World Fair.

Normally the ship will sail from the King George V. Dock, North Woolwich, but whenever the Queen Mary or the Queen Elizabeth is laid up for overhaul she will fill the gap on the Southampton-Cherbourg-New York route.

Everything about the Mauretania is on the imposing scale. The main gear-wheels interposed between the turbines and the twin-propeller shafts are the largest ever built for a liner, measuring 40-ft. in circumference and weighing 85 tons each.

The propellers, which are now being cast in London, weigh 25 tons each and are equal in size to those of the 81,000-ton Queen Mary.

So far forward is the work in the ship that she is already receiving her launching coat of paint.

In view of the important Admiralty work now proceeding in the yard, it is probable that when the ship is launched naval vessels will be screened off by scaffolding and canvas.

Laughing and gay here are Federal troops leaving Valles, San Luis Potosi, in a troop train bound for the hills in the Mexican state to start military operations against General Saturnino Cedillo, leader of the Insurrectionists. President Cardenas issued a manifesto calling upon all rebels to lay down their arms. But General Cedillo, who has revolted against "dictatorship," is leading an army of 14,000 armed Indian peasants, ready for warfare against Federalists in the hills.

At left is President Lazaro Cardenas of Mexico, as he arrived at Valles, in the Insurrectionist state of San Luis Potosi, at the outbreak of the Cedillo rebellion. He is receiving a report from one of his officers. Later he called on the rebels to lay down their arms. But many of the peasants followed General Cedillo into the hills.

ITALIANS PRAISE JAPANESE

Prowess Of Army Widely Acclaimed

Rome, July 7. The first anniversary of the Sino-Japanese war was extensively noted in Italian newspapers by articles praising the Japanese military prowess.—Reuter.

CONQUEST IMPOSSIBLE

Berlin, July 7. "The unity of 450,000,000 people in China will succeed in driving out the enemy and restoring the integrity and sovereignty of our land," said the Chinese Ambassador, in an address to 400 Chinese residents of Germany on the occasion of the first anniversary of the Sino-Japanese War.

"Japan will never bring China to her knees. The deeper the Japanese invade our land the greater will be the difficulties they will encounter."—Reuter.

"QUARANTINE" URGED

Washington, July 7. Seven hundred Chinese paraded through the streets of the nation's capital to-day, afterward attending a patriotic mass meeting at which a resolution was passed urging President Roosevelt to "quarantine aggressors" and halt shipments of war supplies to Japan. The meeting unanimously pledged support to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.—United Press.

CAUSED PUBLIC MISCHIEF, SAYS ODD CHARGE

An unusual case was heard before Mr. H. R. Butters at the Central Magistracy this morning, when Chan Wo, 43, and Chan Hing, 48, were charged with causing mischief or trouble to a public mischief.

Detective Sub-Inspector Darlin prosecuted, and said that the facts of the case were: On June 14, by means of certain false statements contained in a letter saying that Constable 279 had extorted the sum of $1,500 from Au Sze, defendant had caused officers of the Hongkong Police to devote their time and services investigating a false allegation.

On being questioned, first defendant said that he had nothing to do with the matter except that he had been asked to write the letter by the second defendant.

This was admitted by the second defendant who added he wished to obtain legal advice on the matter. The case was then adjourned till to-morrow morning.

USED VIOLENCE ON CREDITOR

Charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm on Cheung Pak, shop assistant, at Elgin Street, Chan Sze-long, unemployed, was sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment, and to pay $5 compensation to the complainant, or serve another week's imprisonment, by Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith at the Central Magistracy to-day.

According to Detective-Sergeant Terret, the defendant called on the complainant to collect a debt of fifty cents, and being unsuccessful, he picked up a file and struck the complainant on the head.

WOMAN CATCHES SNATCH THIEF

Caught by a woman after he had snatched a pair of gold earrings from another woman, Li Chung-ping, 26, was sentenced to six months' hard labour and eight strokes of the cane when he was charged before Mr. Q. A. A. Macdonald at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Doctor Struck Off at 67

By H. L. McNally

"This is a cruel sentence, but my work will go on. More good work has been done in my institute than in many of the consulting-rooms of Harley-street."

In a broken voice, grey-haired, 67-years-old Dr. Henry Nunan Collier, of Chalfont St. Peters, Buckinghamshire, told me this in an ante-room of the General Medical Council in Hallam-street, W.

This man, fifth generation of a family of doctors, had just heard the dread sentence of the Council that his name be erased from the Federal Register for "infamous conduct in a professional respect." Even the eloquence of his counsel Lord Reading, had failed to save him.

The charge against him which the council held proved, was that he was medical adviser to the Institute of Endocrinology, Baker-street, W., that he had obtained patients by advertising, and that he had continued treatment being given by an unregistered person.

"WHAT WILL THEY THINK?" Dr. Collier had stood gripping the edge of the little dock while some 60 of his most distinguished colleagues watched him impassively. In secret they considered their verdict, then waited for Sir Norman Walker, the aged president, to announce it.

Dr. Collier swayed a little as he heard the Registrar directed to erase his name from the Register. From that moment he was no longer a doctor. He walked in a daze into the ante-room, where an aged woman gripped his hands in silent sympathy.

For a while he was unable to speak. "What will my family think of me?" he said to me. "I attended a great many stars of the theatrical profession. What will they think of me now? It is very cruel for me, one of a family of doctors. My great uncle was the first doctor to use chloroform with Sir James Simpson (pioneer of anaesthesia in 1847) in Edinburgh."

"But I shall continue my work with the Institute. I have had so many letters of sympathy and encouragement from patients that I must go on."

Evidence was given that Dr. Collier wrote to the council: "I consider I have been doing nothing contrary to the honour of the profession. I have never had my name on any advertisement scheme. . . . But if the council do not consider I have a right to do the work I am doing, kindly accede to my request remove my name voluntarily so that I may act freely."

"AT MY AGE—"

Mr. Bryan Percy, the patient, said he answered an advertisement by the Institute which said that treatment could be given in any town in Britain and that only one visit was necessary to the Institute.

He was suffering from dyspepsia and paid 15 guineas on account for 30-guineas course of treatment. The Institute sent him pills and tablets which did him good and ampoules for injections, given by a nurse at Grantham, which did not. He refused to pay the balance, was sued, alleged fraud and the Institute withdrew the action and repaid the 15 guineas.

Dr. Collier said he was paid a salary but no commission on patients seen. "At my age I cannot go into practice—it is difficult to get anything."

PEIPING STERNLY RULED

Virtual Martial Law Enforced

Peking, July 7. The Provisional Government ordered all flags to be half-masted, but few were flown.

Meanwhile the Chinese populace is virtually under Martial Law, with the police searching passers-by in the main streets continually since yesterday afternoon. All inns were ransacked. One inn was searched on six occasions yesterday.

A large number of Chinese were arrested last night, including one of the editors of the official Hsin Min Pao.

Police were seen frequently conducting groups of arrested Chinese to gaol.

Police circles boast that Peking's most important Communist was arrested yesterday, but there is no official confirmation of the report.

GRATEFUL TO CANADA'S OFFER TO TRAIN PILOTS

London, July 7. In the House of Commons to-day, asked by Mr. Clement Attlee, leader of the Labour Opposition, if the Canadian Government was prepared to afford facilities for the training of pilots for the R.A.F. in its own establishments, Sir Kingsley Wood, the Minister for Air, replied in the affirmative.

Sir Kingsley added that a reply had been sent to the Canadian Government, expressing warm appreciation of its offer. Arrangements were being made, in accordance with the suggestion by the Canadian Premier, Mr. W. Mackenzie King, to send immediately an officer to Canada to explore the possibilities of working out a scheme.—Reuter.

HURT IN TRAM ACCIDENTS

Reports of two tram car accidents were received by the police yesterday, and in both instances the injured persons were sent to the Queen Mary Hospital for treatment.

Injured to the head were sustained by Lee Yiu, 40, when she was knocked down by tram No. 40 in Des Voeux Road Central, while a 17-year-old boy, Chee Ching-poi, was also injured in the head when he jumped off a moving tram in Johnston Road.

CRUSHED TO DEATH IN MINE MISHAP

The Lin Ma Hang Mines, New Territories, was the scene of a fatal accident yesterday, when Chu Loting, 44, fell while working on one of the ore trucks, and was crushed between the side of the tunnel, and the truck.

CAUGHT WITH OPIUM

Charged with possession of opium and keeping an opium den at a flat in New Market Street, Kwan Lo, 47, appeared before Mr. W. J. Lockhart Smith at Central Magistracy this morning and was fined $135 or, in default, two months' imprisonment, and sentenced to a further two months' imprisonment.

KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR

Serious head injuries were received by a man named Tam Wai, 25, when he was knocked down by a car in King's Road, near the Chinese Athletic Swimming Club yesterday. The man was sent to the Queen Mary Hospital and his condition is regarded as serious.
